Hearing on Sikeston Air Bid March 21

The often postponed civil aeronautics board hearing, which will consider Sikeston's application for commercial air service, has been set for March 21, at Oklahoma City.

The hearing was postponed previously pending possible merger of Ozark and Central airlines.

City Attorney Manuel Drumm, City Manager W. Raymert Miller, Bob Matthews, Paul Fisher and other Sikeston businessmen probably will attend, Drumm said today.

City officials sent a report to the CAB in Washington, D. C. in July containing information about the city's business potential, the need for a commercial airline service, and requested that Sikeston be granted commercial service.

Sikeston has been trying to get a route certified by the CAB for service to and from Memphis and Dyersburg, Tenn. and St. Louis.

$1,600 Watch Is Recovered

A $1,600 watch reported lost by Mrs. Lee R. Bowman, 226 Tanner, was found and returned to her today.

A Canalou family, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hill and their daughters, Sondra and Cindy, found the watch Saturday. It was lying on Front street near Graber's Store.

One of the daughters picked up the watch and at first thought it was a toy. The mother then noticed how it shined.

The watch is tiny and has 32 diamonds on the platinum band.

The Hill family notified Mrs. Bowman after reading about the loss in the Daily Standard.

"My faith in human nature was restored," Mrs. Bowman said.

She reported the loss Sunday to auxiliary policeman James Hahs.

The watch was undamaged, except for a broken link, which caused it to be lost, Mrs. Bowman said. A $50 reward was made to the Hill family.

Hitch Hiker Changes Story Of Robbery

Two truck drivers for North American Van Lines who were arrested Tuesday afternoon in Hayti by the state highway patrol and charged with robbery were released today on payment of court costs, assistant prosecuting attorney Tom Gilmore said. The charges will be dropped.

The men were identified as Bob Lawrence, New Haven, Conn., and Grover Fitzpatrick, Oklahoma City. They appeared in magistrate court today and were given an additional day to seek legal counsel.

However, later Robert Connine, Fenton, a hitchhiker, who had signed a complaint against the men charging that they beat him and took $200 from him, changed his story.

Connine said no money was taken so the men will be released, Scott County Deputy Eddie Michael said.

The truck driver picked Connine up in Fenton. He was hitch hiking to Birmingham. Fitzpatrick and Connine began arguing and came to blows at Benton Monday, Michael said. Lawrence, the driver, stopped the first fight. Connine and Fitzpatrick began arguing again when the three men reached Miner. Lawrence then told them to settle their argument outside the truck and Connine lost the fight, Michael said.

Rotary Observes 2 Anniversaries

Rotarians observed the 20th anniversary of the founding of the Sikeston club and the 62nd birthday of Rotary International last night at the Rustic Rock Inn.

Dr. Frank Sisson, a past district governor of Rotary International, called on the club members to renew their dedication to the organization's service ideal.

"Light candles in the hearts of men which never will be put out," he urged.

"Rotary ideals have enriched our lives," he said in reviewing the history of the organization started in Chicago Feb. 23, 1905 by a lonely lawyer, Paul Harris, who craved fellowship. The first club was formed for mutual benefit of members but helping others subsequently became the object with the adoption of the motto "service above self."

The Sikeston club was formed Feb. 18, 1947 under sponsorship of the West Plains club. It has three charter members, Dr. Sisson, a chiropractor; S. F. Duckworth and W.J. (Chip) Schmerbauch.

Attention was called at last night's meeting to the 20-year perfect attendance record of Sisson and Schmerbauch.

Wayne Woodard introduced Sisson, who was the club's first president, served as district governor, district treasurer and district secretary of Rotary International and was for five years a representative of the president of R.I.

Sisson said that the first project of the Chicago Rotary club was provision of public rest rooms and that the first undertaking of the Sikeston club was a reevaluation of the city's tax structure.

When the Sikeston club was organized there were 300,000 Rotarians, he said. There are now 607,340 members in 134 countries.

The Sikeston club has sponsored study abroad under one Rotary International fellowship - Mrs. William L. Kopp of Madison, Wis., the former Alice Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Martin. Mrs. Kopp studied music in Paris.

Sisson said that the club had sponsored three R.I. seminars, a district conference of R.I. five years ago, had helped the needy, made it possible for young men and women to attend college, organized three Rotary clubs, and will be host to another R.I. district conference April 20-22.

Terry Conn announced that three foreign students at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau will give the program March 13, which will be a club ladies night.

Dr. Ralph Wiggins was a guest of Sisson and Jim Cox of Memphis, a guest of Raymond Leible. John W. Skelton of Dexter was a visiting Rotarian.

Charles Green led the club singing and was accompanied by Mary Ann Bruce at the piano.

Two Women Hurt As Car Overturns

Two persons were injured Monday at 6:10 a.m. on highway 61 a half mile south of Marston, when a 1965 Volkswagen, driven by Jerry Rogers, 22, Birmingham, Mich., ran off the road on a curve and overturned.

Two passengers in the car, Roseland Rogers, 23, Birmingham, received bruises and possible fractured ribs, and Opal Coburn, 49, Arbyrd, received bruises.

Both were taken to the Pemiscot County hospital in Hayti.

House Advances School Aid Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The House moved a bill forward toward final passage today that would allow schools to estimate daily average attendance for their share of funds from the school foundation program.

Schools now collect state funds from the foundation program based upon daily average attendance from the previous year.

School districts in rapidly growing areas have found that the previous year's attendance does not reflect their needs today.

The bill provides a penalty of 6 per cent interest for over estimating attendance.

An amendment was added that would make the bill effective upon the signature of the governor should it also pass the Senate.

Rep. Martin Degenhardt, R-Perryville, and others proposed a change in the constitution that would give House members four year terms beginning with the 1970 elections.

Members from even numbered districts would run for four year terms in 1970 and those from odd-numbered districts in 1972.

The plan also sets up provision for a nonpartisan commission for re-districting the House. If the commission could not come up with a satisfactory realignment plan within six months then the task would be turned over to the six commissioners of the Missouri Supreme Court.

Monday night a House committee heard heated arguments on a bill to let the people vote on the issue of daylight saving time Nov. 7.

Unless the legislature acts to prevent it, Missouri will join the rest of the nation in going on D.S.T. the last Sunday in April.

One woman said "I'm tired of putting my kids to bed before dark so I can get them up before daylight to catch the school bus."

Rep. W. D. Hibler, D-Brunswick, sponsoring the proposal, said he had received letters of complaint from men who said the extra hour of daylight caused their wives to make them do too much work around the house. And wives complained that it just gave their husbands an extra hour to drink in taverns.

Opponents of the bill will be heard later.

A Senate committee approved a bill to make it a felony to make obscene or malicious telephone calls.

Another Senate committee heard a bill to let counties levy 5 cents on each $100 assessed

City Adopts Legalizing Ordinances

Three ordinances legalizing city government procedures were passed in a brief session of the city council at 5 p.m. Monday in the city administration building.

The first ordinance passed formally combines the revenues from the water works with the sewage system. The revenues have been combined in practice, City Attorney Manuel Drumm said.

The combining of revenues essentially allows money collected from water bills to be used for the construction of sewers. There now is no sewer charge.

The other two ordinances were described as carry all measures to adopt the work that has been done to date since the passage of a $1,200,000 water and sewer bond issue at a July 27, 1965, election, Drumm said.

The ordinance formalized the setting up of sinking funds in the city's accounting system for the water and sewer bond issue. A sinking fund has been in existence since the passage of the bond issue.

The sinking fund rate in 1965 and 1966 amounted to 29 cents of the $1.80 per $100 valuation paid in city taxes.

The ordinances were required procedure for the sale of $600,000 in revenue bonds and $600,000 in general obligation bonds for water and sewer construction.

On Feb. 7 the council passed a resolution authorizing the mayor to sell the $600,000, in general obligation bonds to the First National Bank of St. Louis and the $600,000 in general revenue bonds to Zahner and Co. of Kansas City.

Man Waives Hearing On Theft Charge

A California, Mo., man charged with stealing an automobile waived preliminary hearing today in magistrate court and was bound over to circuit court. He is identified as T. A. Akers. Bond was set at $500.

Magistrate Judge M. E. Montgomery presided. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Tom Gilmore represented the state in cases heard:

Ned W. Tanner, route one, Sikeston, charged with speeding, dismissed.

John W. Graham, Sikeston charged with non-support, applied for change of venue to circuit court, sustained.

John D. Fitzgerel, Morley, charged with illegal possession of intoxicants, granted change of venue to circuit court. Bond set at $100.

Sheronda H. Terrell, 835 William, charged with driving an unregistered vehicle, fined $5 and costs.

Glendal R. Taylor, Oran, charged with careless and imprudent driving, fined $10 and costs.

Marvin D. Hedger, Robinson Apts., Sikeston, charged with illegal possession, fined $50 and costs.

Willie Kelly, Benton, charged with operating a motor vehicle with inadequate brakes, fined $5 and costs.

Floyd Hemphill, 300 Alabama, charged with driving while intoxicated, sentenced to six months in jail, stayed during good behavior and given until April 11, to pay court costs. Operator's license revoked.

Albert D. Adams, Robinson Apts., Sikeston, charged with illegal possession, fined $50 and costs.

Eleven Point Included In Scenic River

WASHINGTON AP -- Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Washington, of the Senate Interior Committee introduced Monday a bill to create a national system of scenic rivers.

Jackson said hearings on the measure by his committee will be held April 13-14.

He said the bill was similar to one which passed the Senate last year. It would propose an initial system of nine rivers; 35 others would be studied for possible future inclusion.

The nine rivers, or parts of them, are in Salmon and Middle Fork of the Clearwater in Idaho; the Rogue in Oregon; the Rio Grande in New Mexico; the Eleven Point in Arkansas and Missouri; the Cacapon and Shenandoah in West Virginia; the St. Croix in Minnesota and Wisconsin and the Wolf in Wisconsin.

Accident Alters Altitude Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) - The widely used four-engine DC6 and DC7 airliners have been ordered by the Federal Aviation Agency to stop flying at high altitudes until assured it is safe to resume.

Citing an accident last Friday in which a gaping hole erupted in the side of a Northeast Airlines DC6B, the FAA said that DC6s and DC7s must temporarily operate at altitudes where cabin pressurization is unnecessary.

The blowout accident has been tentatively attributed to failure of a weakened part of the fuselage because of the plane's internal air pressure.

As of the end of 1965, the FAA said, scheduled airlines were using 64 DC7s and 177 of the smaller DC6s. A spokesman for Douglas Aircraft, builders of the planes, said it was likely about 750 are still in service throughout the world - two thirds of the number built between 1946 and 1959.

Jackson Votes On School Bond

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today was election day for several Missouri communities which voted on a variety of bond issues. There was a city council primary election in Kansas City where a light turnout was expected.

One of the larger propositions was a $495,000 school bond issue for Jackson. Another school bond issue of $455,760 was considered at Mexico, which would use the money for an area vocational and technical school.

Chillicothe voted on a $350,000 proposal for acquisition of a new high school site near a vocational and technical school nearing completion.

Hurrt to Locate At Marceline

The Hurrt Fabricating Co., which had announced plans to locate a metal products plant here, has decided to go to Marceline.

The announcement was made Monday by Jake Hurrt president of the Chaney Fence Corp. in Florissant. Chaney Fence is parent organization of Hurrt.

Fielding Potashnick, immediate past president of the Sikeston Industrial Development Corp., said that Hurrt wanted an answer regarding an application to the Small Business Administration for a loan by Feb. 15. Money was needed to construct a building.

The SIDC has an application for a loan pending with the SBA. It probably will be canceled, Potashnick said.

The SDIC had obtained a lease on five acres north of the Tucker Truck lines near the Sikeston Airport for the construction of the facility.

The lease on the property will automatically expire.

Hurrt would have employed 50 skilled workers in two years, with an annual payroll of $200,000.

A building for the plant was found in Marceline.

Johnson Asks Congress to Seek Lower Health Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Johnson told Congress today he wants the government to seek ways to lower health costs.

He also called for action to promote the expansion of noncommercial television and radio, including especially education programs.

In a special message on education and health, Johnson announced that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare will hold a national conference on medical costs "to discuss how we can lower the costs of medical services without impairing the quality."

The President also recommended that Congress create a Corporation for Public Television that would use both public and private funds to support noncommercial broadcasting, both via television and radio.

Picking up an idea that has been advocated by the Ford Foundation, which has urged establishment of such a corporation, Johnson recommended a study of "the practicality and the economic advantages of using communication satellites to establish an educational television and radio network."

These were the highlights of the multipoint message in which Johnson emphasized that this was the keynote:

"I do not recommend more of the same—but more that is better: to solve old problems, to create new institutions, to fulfill the potential of each individual in our land."

The President noted that average hospital costs have more than tripled since 1950 and that other medical expenses have risen sharply.

For that reason, he said, he wants a national conference to bring together leaders of the medical community and members of the public to try to find ways to reverse the upward trend.

In addition, Johnson said, the new National Center for Health Services Research and Development will concentrate first on seeking "new ways to improve the use of professional and auxiliary workers—a key factor in reducing hospital costs."

As for noncommercial television, the President said this holds out a potential promise of bringing to its audience "the excitement of excellence in every field." He said it "will not only instruct, but inspire and uplift our people."

Today, he said, educational and other noncommercial television "is reaching only a fraction of its potential audience -- and achieving only a fraction of its potential worth."

Science Fair Will Be Friday

The junior high school science fair will be held Friday from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. in the cafeteria.

Pupils in grades 7-9 will have science projects on display for the public. A panel of judges from the high school science department will select winners from six cagegories: botany, medicine and health, zoology, chemistry and biochemistry, earth and space science and physics.

Those exhibits judged the best will be entered in the regional science fair at Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau, April 4-7.

The district fair will have two divisions, a junior high and a senior high school division.

Bill Consular Treaty Wins Committee Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) - The consular treaty with the Soviet Union was approved today on a 15-4 vote by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The treaty now goes to the floor where Republican opponents may continue their opposition to the agreement as an unnecessary concession to Moscow that will help North Vietnam and facilitate Communist espionage.

A two-thirds majority approval is necessary for Senate ratification.

Rocket Funds Sought

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson asked Congress today for money to begin the development of a nuclear-powered rocket engine, the Rover.

For this and other scientific projects, Johnson asked a total of $149.8 million for use in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

In addition to the nuclear-powered rocket engine, Johnson asked funds for a physics laboratory for basic physical and biochemical research and a specialized facility for further thermonuclear fission as a potential source of electricity.

"The projects will advance America's ability to harness atomic energy for the peaceful exploration of space," Johnson stated. "They will also help us chart new courses in nuclear science."

Johnson said development of a nuclear-powered rocket engine will take time, and that present plans call for delivery of the first test model in about 1971.

A number of flight and ground tests will precede full use of the engine in space programs, Johnson said.

"That is why I have asked Congress to appropriate funds this year to lay the groundwork for this important program," he explained.

Johnson seeks $91 million in fiscal 1968 for the rocket development and the remaining $58.8 million to develop the two new research facilities.

Both new research facilities will be built by the Atomic Energy Commission at its Los Alamos, N.M., scientific laboratory.

Johnson said government scientists and engineers successfully have tested reactors and engines with 55,000 pounds of thrust, and have concluded that a much more powerful engine would have distinct advantages over those now in use.

The nuclear-powered engine is expected to have a thrust of 200,000 to 250,000 pounds.

This, Johnson said, will almost double the weight of the present pay load of the Saturn 5 vehicle, increase ability to maneuver spacecraft, and be used in future manned landings and exploration of distant planets.

Dr. Louis Rosen, a division head at the Los Alamos facility, said the physics facility sought by Johnson will permit scientists to try to develop a precise new ray for destroying cancerous tumors.

X-rays are now the classic treatment for destroying the

50 Paintings Will Go On Display in Charleston

CHARLESTON -- The March art exhibit at the Mississippi County Historical society and art gallery will be 50 paintings -- 30 oils and 20 watercolors -- from the Grumbacher collection under the auspices of the Old Bergen Art Guild, Bayonne, N.J. The Charleston Lions Club is the sponsor.

The show, titled "The Palette Reveals the Artist," is a collection by nationally known artists.

Of the 50 artists represented, one of the best known is Doug Kingman. Kingman, born in California and reared in China, has received international recognition for his watercolors. Because of his background, when "55 Days At Peking," a movie about the Boxer rebellion in China was being filmed, Kingman was commissioned by the producer to do 50 watercolor background paintings.

The show begins Wednesday and will end March 21. There will be an open house Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

New museum and gallery hours are 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. daily and Sunday.

An invitation is extended to schools to bring classes or groups to view the paints.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

The House Ways and Means Committee on Wednesday (March 1) begins hearings on President Johnson's proposals on Social Security expansion.

President Johnson is urging on Congress what he calls "the greatest improvement in living standards for the elderly since the Social Security Act was passed in 1935." Implicit is a sweeping change in the whole philosophy of the Social Security system and indeed of the nation's obligations to the aged.

The President's Message on Older Americans which he sent to Congress on Jan. 23 made surprisingly little impact on general news media. It raised a flurry of alarm in the business press, however, and that concern is bound to grow.

What the President wants is a 20 per cent increase in Social Security benefits. He also is asking for reform of tax laws applying to the elderly. He proposes to pay for part of the increases with sharply higher Social Security taxes on employees and employers alike. But even if Congress votes the tax rises, the expansion of the system will mean another giant step away from the concept of the idea of Social Security as insurance and toward welfare government.

To be sure, President Johnson said that our program "must continue on an actuarially sound basis." Every President from Franklin D. Roosevelt on has made much of actuarial soundness. But in fact, a Social Security debt of more than $400 billion exists right now. This sum represents the difference between the present value of future pension rights and the present value of future tax collections at present rates, plus accumulated reserves.

The Johnson proposals would push that debt to $500 billion. Young people, and the more affluent of all ages, eventually would pay the bill.

President Johnson said in considering the needs of the elderly "our goal is not merely to prolong our citizens' lives, but to enrich them." President George P. Meany of the AFL-CIO said that a 20 per cent increase in benefits would constitute "a substantial down-payment on what we firmly believe is the needed 50 per cent rise in benefits."

The Meany statement is a portent of what's to come. The AFL-CIO and its state and local affiliates are prepared to spend thousands of dollars on a mass education and pressure program in the next few months.

Huge rallies are planned for March 12 in Boston, Cleveland, Cincinnait, Chicago, New Orleans, New York, Milwaukee, Denver, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, and Seattle. In St. Louis the rally will be March 10; in Pittsburgh, April 2. Further rallies are planned for Detroit, Oklahoma City, and Daytona Beach, and others in the works.

This is the kind of muscle that Congressmen find hard to resist. And it's pushing in the direction of financing of some Social Security payments out of general revenues.

Why do drivers get lost?

A recent survey of cabbies, transportation firms, truck drivers and the state police disclosed these reasons:

--Inattention, listening to the radio, talking and many other momentary distractions may cause drivers to miss important signs or take the wrong turns.

--Drivers may become confused by too many signs, or by driving in the wrong lane or in an unfamiliar city. Arguments and back-seat driving have caused drivers to lose their way, too.

--Many motorists do not plan thoroughly enough in advance of their trip. They are unaware of route changes or turn-offs. Some don't even bother to carry maps, say perplexed state police.

--In some instances, lost drivers genuinely seem to have a poor sense of direction. After a few turns, they are unable to tell in what direction they are going.

--Speed causes many drivers to miss important directional signs. They whiz by...and end up miles away from their destinations.

How can you avoid getting lost? Try these tips:

.Plan your trip well in advance. Look at maps, study the route and stay on the one you choose. Know where you are going and when to expect the turn-offs leading to your destination. Equip your car with a compass to check your sense of direction.

.Watch those signs. Fewer drivers would get lost, say state police, if they paid more attention to the large green directional signs used on most major routes today. These signs, coated with materials that reflect sign messages in headlight brilliance, can be seen at greater distances, even at night.

.Slow down for congested areas, intersections, cloverleafs and turn-offs. This gives you time to make the correct turn or get into the proper lane. Such precaution also lessens the chance of an accident.

.When visiting friends in a strange city, phone ahead and ask for directions to their home. This may save wasted time and hot tempers. Cabbies say you should always carry the street guide for a strange city.

.Carry maps of your route on the trip. Consult them when necessary to keep yourself on course.

.If you do get lost, stop and inquire. Call the local police or fire station for information. Listen carefully to the advice and you should be back on the road - headed in the right direction - with a minimum of delay.

To college students in Portland, Ore., John D. Gray, president of Omark Industries recently said, in part:

"...American business needs the today's young intellectual. There are so many tasks to be done if the rest of the 20th Century is to be made livable. We in business need, and society needs, people who can lift the smog from our cities, clean up the streams fouled by an industrialization that has soured rivers while sweetening life; to help unsnarl the traffic of our streets and highways, to help us respond humanely, properly and profitably to the Negro revolution, and - what is also important - to help us keep on building better mousetraps at less cost.....

"Here, then, are the qualities business seeks in the young men and women who move from the campus to the corporate offices:

"A healthy and proper respect for the profit motive and the understanding of the role it plays in the American system.

"An understanding of the needs of modern society.

"The ability to create and to innovate.

"The intellectual capacity to recognize problems and find solutions.

"A flexibility that accepts change, and I cannot overstress this quality...."

MAYBE THEY SHOULD JOIN A UNION

We hear some criticism of the members of the legislature over their attempt to raise their salaries enought to compensate them for the time spent in Jefferson City.

And the time they are at home when their constituents call them day after day and night after night.

Bending their ear with all of the legislation they would like to see enacted or

About all the legislation they think is bad and should be defeated.

No, my readers, the time spent in Jefferson City is not near all the time our Senators and Representatives put in on the job.

We do not hesitate to let the unions take us to the cleaners with their wage demands. Why not write to your Senator or Representative today and encourage them to support the raise.

Must they join a union and go on strike and let "Old Liberality", the federal government, make the laws for Missouri.

Think it over. They are the operators of an over a billion dollar a year business.

Would you want the reliefers handling your State's business.

Although there have been many lifesaving discoveries in the field of medicine, man has yet to learn what goes on in the minds of many people when they get behind the wheel of an automobile.

"Some of the most likeable people act like madmen as soon as they get into the driver's seat," declared Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol. "Their whole personality seems to change. They believe the highway belongs to them only and they maneuver their vehicles accordingly."

The Patrol Superintendent stated that many people let out their suppressed hostilities toward society when they get behind the wheel. These characteristics make them a hazard on the highway. Included in this group is the egotist, the overemotional driver and the show-off.

The egotist is a psychological misfit in the traffic scene. He has not learned to share the highway with other people. He is a driver who is aggressive, demanding, impatient, and thorougly selfish in his actions affecting other drivers.

Uncontrolled emotions are a sign of immaturity. A baby does not control his emotions, he merely expresses them. The ability to control emotions and to remain calm under pressure should develop as one grows older. Unfortunately, some people don't grow up in this respect. Overemotional drivers are apt to express anger by driving recklessly, flashing their high-beam lights in the eyes of approaching drivers or crowding and forcing others out of traffic lanes.

The show-off is just plain childish. He wants to call attention to himself. This type of driver, for example, never drives squarely in a line of traffic, but is always nosing out of line a bit, ready for any possible chance to pass the car ahead. The speed of the line of traffic, or the car ahead, has no bearing upon his desire to pass.

"It is important that drivers realize that these types of people do travel the roadways," Colonel Hockaday said. "The best way to protect yourself from these highway hazards is to drive defensively."

A BOW TO THE CREATIVE DESIGNERS

We continue to be impressed by the great strides made by the American designers of men's apparel. With a minimum of fuss-and-feathers and with the maximum of constant dedication to the improvement of U.S. men's wear -- the firms which employ them have risen to financial heights never before achieved in any nation in the world. Foreign countries send trade delegations here to study our creative accomplishments; our fashions are copied in every corner of the globe. And we can credit the designers -- for, without the excellence of the product, it would not be possible to dominate the clothing world, as our giant manufacturers have done.

"Okay, when do you want me?" the old-timer asked.

"Can you be at the television station at nine in the morning?"

"Nope, too early," he replied. "I don't stop coughing until noon."

WAGE-PRICE FREEZE IN GREAT BRITAIN

Last July the Labor Government of Great Britain imposed a mandatory freeze on most wages and prices. It was supposed to be only temporary, perhaps to end in 1966. Now statements by the Labor Government and reports from impartial observers indicate that the wage-price freeze will almost certainly be continued well into 1967 and may last indefinitely.

Unless a country is in the midst of an all-out war for survival which causes great scarcity of civilian goods, a wage-price freeze by government means just one thing: a confession of the total failure and disastrous consequences of government meddling in the economy. It means that government, having tried everything else, has been driven to the last resort of clamping an iron hand on the economy while the bureaucracy struggles to regroup.

It is ironic but appropriate that this crude and restrictive measure, which prevents British workingmen from even hoping for pay increases just as it prevents British businessmen from making any reasonable margin of profit, should come from that loudly self-professed "friend of the workingman," the Labor Party. When the workingman's alleged "friends" clamp a freeze on his wages, he has no need to look any further for his enemies.

There is real danger that before long the United States may follow the road of Great Britain with increased government interference in the economy leading in the end to fixed wages and prices. That is the final result of government's destruction of the free market. To avoid it, we must begin liberating the market from existing controls, instead of adding more. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The congressional punishment of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, the toughest in the last 100 years, has set laudable standards which must be applied to other congressmen, whether white or black.

One committee chairman to whom the standard must be applied is Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., who as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee and a watchdog of the CIA listens to the nation's most sensitive secrets.

Rivers, however, is a security risk. He can be trusted with a secret no longer than it takes him to gulp down a few jiggers of bourbon.

Rivers' flowing white hair and thin, dissipated face might have come from the pages of a William Faulkner novel. He is a charming, likeable person. But he simply cannot hold his liquor. This is a personal tragedy, which might have remained a whisper in Charleston's fashionable drawing rooms except that he has made it a national problem.

For he is briefed not only by Central Intelligence, but by the defense department on the most super - secret matters. Yet, if he weren't a powerful congressman thrust into a key chairmanship by sheer seniority, he couldn't get a security clearance for the most minor job in the Pentagon.

We have tracked down various witnesses regarding Rivers. They range from the blackwater swamps of his native South Carolina to the musty military offices of the Panama Canal; and from Amityville, N.Y., to Houston, Tex. Some are former aides who fear retaliation; others are military officers whose careers would be ruined if they were identified. So we will report the facts without identifying any but pro-Rivers sources.

Most witnesses described the congressman as charming when he's sober, a terror when he's drunk. One military escort, who had to nursemaid him overseas, recalled the experience as "horrendous."

When Rivers sobers up after an alcoholic binge, said a former aide, he "can't remember whom he has seen or what he has said".

"ROARING DRUNK"

"Sometimes we would come into his office and find it strewn with bottles," said a former secretary, "and the safe would be wide open."

One ex - employee remembered receiving a call to pick up the congressman at Washington's posh Mayflower Hotel.

"His shirt was smeared with lipstick, and he was too drunk to know what he was doing," said the employee.

On another occasion, he was brought to the home of an employee to keep him out of trouble.

"He was roaring drunk," was the recollection. "We went to bed but left the bottle on the table and the light was left on so he could get his drinks."

In the morning, he requested an orange, ate it like an animal, peel and all, and spewed it out.

Often the navy would be notified discreetly to send an ambulance to haul the congressman to the Bethesda Naval Hospital to dry out. He was also dropped off on other occasions at Alcoholics Anonymous in the hope they could help.

The armed forces always took the precaution of assigning a military escort with a reputation for sobriety as nursemaid to Rivers on his overseas junkets. One escort insisted that the congressman, who has been able to stay on the wagon for months at a time, behaved like a gentleman.

Others had different recollections. In London, he was found romping through a hotel corridor in his undershorts. In Madrid, he tore the dress of a lady guide. Once he got a few drinks under his belt, he also had a disposition to order generals around like bellhops.

SCOTCH VIA AIR FORCE

After one overseas winding, he alerted aides to meet him at the airport. The air force plane arrived with no congressman but with several cases of scotch he had purchased abroad.

"We were told that the congressman had become ill and hadn't been able to return home," recalled one aide.

Delacey Shuman, the congressman's former administrative assistant, when asked about the congressman's drinking, would say only: "I don't want to discuss his personal affairs. I handled my business, and he handled his."

An air force pilot recalled another time that the air force flew 40 cases of whisky from Bermuda for delivery to the congressman at Charleston.

Rivers' power over military legislation is such that, on at least three occasions, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the secretaries of the three services and other top generals and admirals took time out from the Vietnam war to fly to South Carolina and pay homage to the House Armed Services Chairman.

Recalled an air force officer who in 1965 greeted their plane: "I personally saw Rivers stagger off the plane so drunk he could hardly stand up."

Congress spends hundreds of thousands of dollars each year investigating security risks. Yet it permits an alcholic to preside over the House Armed Services Committee and the CIA watchdog committee, privy to the nation's most vital secrets, which he may blab the next time he gets drunk.

Miss Sally Ann Shibley Weds Davis Donaldson Ray

NEW MADRID -- Red poinsettas, against an embankment of magnolia leaves, adorned the altars of the Immaculate Conception church when Miss Sally Ann Shibley became the bride of Davis Donaldson Ray Dec. 29 at 4 p.m. The Rev. Amel Shibley, uncle of the bride, solemnized the nuptial mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Shibley, of New Madrid, and Ray is the son of Mrs. Patty D. Ray of Decatur, Ill.

During the ceremony, vocalist, Larry Don Swindle of Memphis, Tenn., sang, "Ave Maria" and "On This Day", accompanied at the organ by Miss Judy Hampton.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was attired in a candle glow satin sheath, fashioned with an empire bodice. Re-embroidered Alencon lace and pearl applique decorated the bodice and accented points on the long sleeves. The appliques were repeated around the hemline and on the chapel-length train. Her veil was of French imported silk illusion, caught by a delustered bow accented with re-embroidered Alencon lace and pearl trim.

She carried a cascade of white tea roses and stephanotis, centered with a white orchid with streamers of white satin ribbon tied in love knots.

The bride chose for her matron of honor her sister, Mrs. Douglas Ballinger of Memphis, Tenn., with her cousin, Miss Sandra Lynn Noffell of Portageville, being maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Alice Whitehead, Miss Susanne Wilkins and Miss Eleanor Gallivan of Memphis, Tenn. They all wore formal - length empire style gowns in lime peau with moss green velvet bodice and sleeves. Their removable coats were fashioned with fabric bows on the shoulders. Mrs. Ray wore a blue silk suit with marching accessories. Her hat was a feathered black and white turban and she wore a white orchid corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Country Club.

The bride's table was covered with a white peau de soie floor-length cloth overlaid with white net draped and caught at the corners with bows. A silver ribbon running the length of the table was inscribed with the names of the bride and groom and the wedding date. Centering the table was a four-tiered wedding cake topped with a silver marriage cross with interlocking rings symbolizing marriage in Christ.

Five-branched silver candelabra flanked the cake on either side with a silver punch bowl at one end of the table and silver coffee service at the other end. Silver compotes of nuts and mints completed the table appointments.

The guest book table matched the bride's table in design.

Serving at the bride's table were Miss Mary Carolyn Ellis of Vicksburg, Miss., Miss Linda Kay Pegram of Memphis, Tenn., Miss Johynne Hamra of Kennett, Mrs. Robert Schott of Cape Girardeau and Miss Ann Evans Copeland of New Madrid.

Miss Amelia Ann Shibley was in charge of the guest book.

Hello! First of all I'm sorry I didn't write about my father, Herman Poe, being back in the hospital but he is at home now and is fine. In fact he is back at work. Thanks to all who asked about him.

Next, this was my week at the bowling alley. I had the high game rolled at the lanes this week with a 227 but what thrilled me so much was I also strung two other games of over 200 with it for a 650 series. Now I know there are several gals who do this regularly but this was my first 600 series and it really shook me up. Actually I should rest on my laurels but I'm afraid my teams won't let me.

Scott Central Marches On

By Staff Writer

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The Scott Central Braves and the Notre Dame Bulldogs won their first round games in state basketball tournaments last night.

In the class S tourney the Braves dumped the Naylor Eagles, 67-53. In the Class M tourney the Bulldogs nipped the Fredericktown Black Cats, 46-43.

In the opening game both the Braves and the Eagles started slowly. With 6:19 remaining in the first quarter Naylor took a 1-0 lead on a free throw, and increased the lead to 3-0 on a field goal. The Braves did not get on the score board until two minutes and 32 seconds had been played.

Central surged to a 17-10 lead at the end of the first quarter, but Naylor closed the gap in the second period as the Eagles hit two quick baskets in a row. Then Central began to pour it on and went into the dressing room with a comfortable 35-25 lead.

In the first half the Braves Terry Bell scored 10 points and Jimmy Taylor added 13, hitting on six of nine field goal attempts. Roger Abernathy led the Eagle's scoring with 11 points in the first half.

After the intermission the Braves dominated the action. Although Naylor outscored Central, 18-15, in the third period, the Braves continued to dominate both offensive and defensive boards and walked away with the contest in the final quarter.

Stephen Miles wound up with 17 points. Jimmy Taylor had 15 and Terry Bell 12 for the Braves. Abernathy finished with 19 for Naylor Naylor played a slow type offense, waiting for the good shot. It hit only 18 out of 49 field goal attempts for a 36.8 per cent average.

The Braves also varied from their normal pattern by using a slower type offense. They hit 44.4 per cent from the field, sinking 28 of 63 field goal attempts.

The Braves outrebounded the Eagles, 54-44, and were able to work the ball in under the basket for layups. Miles had 13 rebounds and Gary Owens, who was held to only four points by the Eagles, pulled down 11 rebounds for Central.

Naylor finished the season with a 23-7 record. The Braves now, 23-7 for the campaign, will meet New Haven Wednesday at 7 p.m. New Haven defeated New Franklin, 100-60, last night in the first round class S state tourney a Cuba. The winner of Wednesday's game will go to the semi-finals at Lexington Friday night.

In the nightcap the Notre Dame Bulldogs, led by Greg Flaker, downed the Fredericktown Black Cats, 46-43, in a slow - paced game. Flaker scored 21 points and was the only Bulldog in double figures.

The Bulldogs did not look as impressive as they did against Matthews in the finals of the Illmo - Scott City regional Saturday night, and led by a scant 5-3 margin at the end of the first quarter. Against Matthews the Bulldogs won the game in the first quarter with a 63 per cent clip from the field.

At the half the Dogs led, 19-17.

Notre Dame meets Hayti North Wednesday night in the quarterfinal round of the class M state tournament. Hayti North edged Bloomfield, 50-49 at Bloomfield last night.

Charleston and Sikeston Open L Action With Wins

POPLAR BLUFF -- Charleston and Sikeston opened first round action of the class L regional basketball tournament in Southeast Missouri last night with victories. Charleston edged Cape Girardeau Central 66-59 in overtime and Sikeston crashed Caruthersville's defense 79-51.

First round action will be completed tonight as Perryville goes against second-seeded Poplar Bluff at 7 p.m. Jackson and Kennett battle at 8:30 p.m.

Charleston had to fight to add its 16th consecutive victory and notch its 21st of the season. Scrappy Cape Central led for most of four periods. Cape couldn't connect on free throws in the closing seconds and allowed the game to be tied, after which the Blue Jays sailed to victory.

Larry Briggs again proved to be the man of seconds. He swished in a 25-foot jumper with five seconds remaining on the clock for a 59-59 tie.

Briggs, who has connected on two other such shots in the closing seconds of a game, gave his team that added lift and momentum that led it to an overtime victory.

Cape jumped out in the first period with a two-point lead, 19-17, and added three more points to it by outscoring Charleston in the second period 15-12.

Charleston came out in the third period, netted 17 points and held Cape to 11 for a 56-45 lead, but quickly lost it as the final period opened.

Central had numerous opportunities in the final period to ice the game but failed.

With the score deadlocked at 57-57, Cape's Johnson was at the line with two free throws. He netted them. Charleston raced down floor and missed a shot.

Johnson of Cape went to the foul line again, this time with 20 seconds remaining. He was given one and one situation, where if a player makes his first shot he gets another chance for two. He missed his first, grabbed the rebound and was fouled again but missed the shot.

Briggs followed with his 25-foot jumper which tied the score with five seconds to go.

In overtime Brown hit the first Charleston basket and Betts followed with two free throws. Babb added a free pitch and Briggs hit a 20-footer as the horn sounded. Cape went scoreless in the overtime period.

BALANCED SCORING FOR DOGS

Four of the Sikeston quintet's starters hit in double figures. They stumbled from a 15-14 first quarter lead into a 36-26 halftime lead and never let up.

Lester Carter swished 22 points through the nets for the Bulldogs and Limbaugh and Towns added 15 each and Gary Wiss pumped in 13.

The Bulldogs scored 33 field goals and added 13 free pitches in adding up their 79-point total.

The game was close in the first period but the Dogs of Coach N. P. McDaniel fought with a deadly press in the second period to take a half time lead and notched 43 points in the second half while holding Caruthersville's Tigers to 25, six in the third period.

Carl Barnet, the other Bulldog starter, netted seven points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

Jim Prather topped Caruthersville with 16 points.

Charleston and Sikeston, arch - rivals, will battle Wednesday night in a semi-final round game.

Bloomfield's Season Ends In First Round Game Of State Class M Tournament

BLOOMFIELD - The Contributions of Andy Bullinger to the Bloomfield Wildcats were apparent last night as Hayti North defeated the Wildcats in a first round game of the state class M basketball tournament, 50-49, in overtime.

Bloomfield's Bullinger was missed in three departments, rebound, scoring and as a leader against the press.

Hayti North stayed within striking range of the Wildcats and finally stuck the Cats with an Indian press that startled the Wildcats. Hayti moved ahead with two quick baskets in the final three minutes of the fourth quarter.

Bloomfield held a 21-19 lead at intermission after posting a 11-10 first quarter lead.

Hayti struggled to stay within three points at the end of the third period after Bloomfield shot into a five-point lead midway in the period but passed up many chances to add to it.

Hayti came storming back in the fourth period when it netted 20 points and held Bloomfield to 15 until, with three second to go, Bloomfield's Wayne Corse hit a 30-foot jumper for a 56-56 tie.

Without the services of the Cats leading rebounder in overtime, Terry Chasteen, who fouled out with eight seconds remaining in the final quarter, fell in the extra three minutes.

Hayti used its press and fast break in the last 11 minutes hitting layin after layin against the Wildcats' press.

Bloomfield fell one shot short in overtime. Doyle Swindle tried a 40-foot shot that fell short as the horn sounded.

Hayti had chances in the final three minutes of the overtime to ice the game but Ben Johnson missed on two one and one chances after hitting the first shot of one. Bloomfield passed up a layin and committed a three-second violation to give the game to Hayti.

Ben Johnson was the Indians' big gun as he has been all season. He dumped in 17 points and hauled in 18 rebounds. Ben Watkins was the man of the minute in overtime. He hit a layin and picked off a Wildcat pass.

Doyle Swindle tied Johnson for high game honors. He hit 17 points in leading the Wildcats' scoring attack.

Hayti North will meet Notre Dame at Cape Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m. in a quarterfinal round game. The winner will advance to the tournament semi-finals at Lexington Friday.

Vacation Safety In Your Car

DRIVING THE INTERSTATES

Approximately half the 41,-000 - mile, coast - to - coast, interstate highway system awaits this summer's tourists. As more miles of the interstate system open for travel each year, vacation driving becomes safer. Statistics prove it: On ordinary highways, the fatality rate per 100 million vehicle miles is 9.7. But, on the interstate and other interstate - type highways, it is 3.5 deaths per million vehicle miles.

Anyone, such as a vacationer, who drives the interstates and interstate - type highways must adapt to driving conditions that differ dramatically from conditions on other highways. Here are some suggestions for interstate driving:

-- Entry. In most cases, you will enter the interstate from a long acceleration lane. Don't stop in this lane. Instead, judge the speed of the traffic streaming past you, pick a gap, then accelerate to a speed that permits you to merge with the traffic.

Fatigue and Monotony. Drivers tend to become bored and drowsy after driving into the hazy distance for hours, to the accompaniment of motor hum and the click - clack of wheels over pavement joints.

So, don't drive for more than eight hours in one day. Stop for 10 - minute breaks every two hours or so. Drink plenty of water, orange juice, or lemonade. Eat lightly. If you become drowsy, change your posture and open outside air vents. Talk or sing. Turn the radio to LOUD! Vary your speed with short intervals of faster and slower driving.

--Exit. Know the name and the route number of your exit . . . and the one before it. Start looking well before you expect to see them, so you'll have plenty of time to ease into the right - hand lane.

If you see the exit looming up just ahead while you're still in an inside lane, drive past it rather than risk a high-speed collision by slowing suddenly or changing lanes abruptly.

Once you're exiting on the deceleration lane, slow down more than you think necessary if the speed limit isn't posted. Miles of interstate driving at consistently high speed can cause you to seriously misjudge your speed.

-- The Car. Make sure your car is ready for those long stretches of high- speed interstate system driving. Inspect the tires and fan belt -- two common ingredients in expressway breakdowns -- and fill the radiator.

You'll hate yourself if you don't fill your gas tank, too, before entering the interstate system. Service stations are located only at exits on most sections of the interstate, so don't count on conveniently located service areas between exits.

Blows Fly at OEO Session

HAYTI -- Blows were struck and one man was hit over the head with a chair at a blistering meeting of the Semo Economic Opportunities Corp., administrator of the poverty program in Pemiscot County, here Tuesday night.

Sheriff Clyde Orton and Jerry Bain engaged in a brief fist fight before others in a crowd of 35 to 40 persons separated them.

Witnesses said while Mr. Bain was being held he was struck over the head with a folding chair wielded by Byars Orton, brother of the sheriff, and a former associate judge on the Pemiscot County Court.

Apparently none of the participants was injured in the eruption.

The fight broke out after a new board of directors had been elected and had gone into a closed session in another room.

Seeds were evidently sown, however, during a meeting at which new directors were nominated and chosen.

Witnesses said words were exchanged between Mr. Bain and Coy Wilson of Wardell over Mr. Bain's recent resignation as paid director of one of the Hayti centers of the poverty program.

Mr. Bain had served on the board of directors with his father, Leroy Bain, mayor of Hayti, and had resigned from this post to take the paid position, a board member reported.

Subsequent to this, it was ruled Jerry Bain could not hold the paid position because his father was serving on the board which control's the county poverty program. As a result of this, he resigned within the past month.

After Mr. Bain and Mr. Wilson exchanged words, witnesses said, the sheriff entered the dispute and the fight ensued. Mr. Bain is in his early 30's and the sheriff is in his mid-40's.

The dispute is evidently a part of a power struggle between factions in the poverty program. It is expected, those concerned said, that directions will be asked the regional office in Kansas City in view of Thursday night's developments.

The meeting was called to elect 12 members to a 24-member board. Twelve members had previously been chosen, three from each of four centers -- Wardell-Hayward, Hayti-Deering, Steele and Caruthersville.

Until the new board was completed, it was explained, the original 24-member body continued in office. This group ruled that the 12 already elected would choose the remaining 12.

Nominations of three men from Caruthersville were made by the Caruthersville group. This was countered by nominations of three Caruthersville men by Neeley Mitchell of Hayti. Other nominations were made by the remaining centers.

The 12 members previously chosen by the centers voted by secret ballot on the nominations. These votes were taken in the open session and not at the closed meeting.

Serving as temporary chairman during the meeting was Tommy German, mayor of Steele and full-time deputy sheriff under Sheriff Orton.

Those elected from Caruthersville were those put in nomination by Mr. Mitchell. Opponents charged that they were actually the selections of Sheriff Orton.

During these developments, most of the delegation walked out. They were not present when the fight took place.

The Caruthersville group said the three elected had not shown any previous interest in the poverty program. They said also that the Thursday night meeting was the first attended by Sheriff Orton.

The dispute is the second to break out in southeast Missouri over the povery program.

Earlier in the Delta Area Economic Opportunities Corp., an election dispute broke out when J.V. Conran, New Madrid County political leader, took over as presiding officer at a meeting.

Decisions made at that time were later ruled invalid by the Kansas City Regional Office of OEO.

Long Tells of Privacy Threat

BOSTON -- U.S. Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Missouri) today warned that private police forces hired by political leaders are "an extremely serious threat to the citizen's right of privacy."

Senator Long was speaking to students and faculty members of Babson Institute, Babson Park, Massachusetts.

"Private police forces can easily violate laws, crush privacy, create fear and mistrust among the people," Senator Long said.

Long said "The citizen has no control, no say-so in the creation or operation of the force. The force has no sense of responsibility to the citizen's rights."

Senator Long warned that private police forces "will serve only to undermine legitimate local law enforcement agencies."

"The biggest need in crime prevention today is better equipped and better trained local forces. What we do not want is a free-wheeling political police force playing havoc with our democratic system," Senator Long said.

Private police forces are like "the Gestapo and the secret police," Senator Long said. "They owe their allegiance to an official, not to the people. They are not even paid by the people, but by private funds."

Senator Long is Chairman of the Senate Subcommittee investigating wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping activities in the United States.

Author of a new book, The Intruders, he said "I wrote my book to alert the American people to the tremendous danger of apathy about privacy. We are not secure in our privacy today," he said.

The Missouri Senator is also chief sponsor of a bill in the Senate to outlaw all wiretapping and eavesdropping by government and private agents. At Babson Institute today, Senator Long said "I hope we can get right of privacy legislation through the Congress this year."

"Large firms are wiretapping and snooping on each other and on labor unions. The bugging business is big money. An expert can earn over six hundred dollars just to place one bug. The losses to the victim often soar into the millions," Long said.

Dear Ron:

What's wrong, did I help to tear down your play house?

In the first place I did not condemn the entire Senior Class only those who took part in the incident and I didn't condemn them any more than I did the parents if they knew about it for not putting a stop to it.

I know school officials can only go so far if they don't have the cooperation of the parents. No, it sure was not a cry of indignation. I gave it very careful thought that if I could say something that would put a stop to something that could turn into a tragedy and you kids would be sorry for the rest of your lives. Also to help some of the parents feel their deep responsibility. It will be worth any criticism or embarrassment that I might get.

As for the tradition, it's a very bad one. If you are ashamed for people to know about it why not carry on a tradition that both you and your school can be proud of.

And I don't wish war or death on anyone, but I do say if your parents or the school officials neither one can control you and stop you from doing things like that you need to be over there where just maybe you would learn that you have responsibilities to others as well as yourself, instead of trying to ignore the very thing our boys are fighting for - the rights and privileges of others.

And the narcotic report - it's not the first time it's been reported in our schools. About 4 or 5 years ago there was quite a stir about it being in school and there is no limit I wouldn't go as I know a lot of others would, to keep our boys and girls from coming in contact with that.

I have had several mothers to call me about the letter and they have boys in high school and they are behind me one hundred percent. Now maybe it will stop.

I know kids do things sometimes without thinking about the harm it could cause but now you know so don't do it anymore, and for goodness sake, get a better tradition please.

It's every citizen's duty to keep our schools and our town clean and something to be proud of and the way to keep it that way is to put a stop to things like that before it gets out of control and leads to worse things.

Come out and talk to me personally. I would like nothing better.

Let me congratulate you on your 12th Annual Progress Edition. It is an issue any newspaper could be justly proud of.

Thanks for your splendid issue of the Standard. How in the world did you ever get the time to work up something like that? I'm going to keep it as a sample for the time, if it ever comes, when we put out a special.

By the way, are you going to the Washington Study Mission March 8-11? You should make it. We're going and you'd enjoy seeing you there.

Good Morning Charlie:

You made an otherwise gloomy, overcast day in Columbia look a lot brighter today when I received the Standard's 12th Annual Progress Edition. Marilyn and I save it and read it by pieces, catching up on all the news and fine things that have happened in Sikeston since our last visit.

I certainly hope all your readers see the Progress Edition as a representation of the growth your city has experienced in the past year and realize the tremendous potential Sikeston has to become the capital of the Bootheel. I think also your readers should take note of the merchants, firms and businessmen who have advertised in the progress edition because they're the ones who have made Sikeston's growth possible. The people interested in making Sikeston a good place to live are those who take the time and money to tell their neighbors about Sikeston through their progress reports and advertising.

Sikeston certainly has a lot to be proud about. Maybe your readers will want to buy extra copies of the Progress Edition to send to friends and business associates to show what a wonderful town they live in.

Thanks for sending the newspaper. I'm just about ready to pack up and move down because of it.

Highlights and Sidelights

HOUSE CONSIDERS "DUAL ENROLLMENT" BILL

JEFFERSON CITY - Amid many of the emotional arguments against the proposed "shared time" bill under consideration in the House of Representatives, more thought is being given to the lucid presentation for the bill given to the House education committee by Paul E. Williams, legal assistant to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

The bill recently was approved by the House education committee and is now being considered on the floor of the House. House passage is expected but more opposition is foreseen in the Senate.

In a seven - page statement Williams pointed out that the question whether the bill would violate constitutional prohibitions against aid to religion has been thoughtfully considered by legal authorities in several states -- none of whom hold that a dual attendance program violates the constitutional prohibition against aid to religion.

Williams warned the committee against referring to the bill as a "shared time" or "dual enrollment" proposal. "We should look to what the bill does, and not to what it is called," he said.

The bill, he said, "would permit children to attend more than one school during the regular schooltime. This would not apply to all school programs but would be limited to only two types -- special education for the mentally and physically handicapped children, and programs for economically and educationally deprived children financed by the United States under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965."

"Some handicaps," he explained, "permit the child to remain in the normal school curriculum most of the time, special instruction being required only part time. A typical example of such a handicap would be the need for speech correction, or training of the partially deaf or blind."

"Educationally deprived children" are those who, because of poverty, handicap, inferior schools and the like, have not made normal advancement.

The federal funds are only granted for use in a school concentration of low - income families. The funds may not be used to merely supplant existing programs, but must be used to finance new or supplemental programs, he said.

Frequently this money is used for remedial programs in the basic skills, "the old three Rs -- reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic," Williams explained.

In addition, under the Federal act, if the program does not provide for participation of children attending private schools, then no federal funds will be granted for the benefit of any children.

Present state law prohibits conducting a program during regular schooltime which includes children enrolled in non - public schools. To meet federal requirements of comparable opportunity to private pupils, public school districts must conduct these federal programs during the evening, on Saturday and during the summer.

However, school authorities have reported that pupils in such programs make considerably lower gains than pupils who attend programs during normal school hours.

A 1964 survey, Williams said, was conducted by the National Education Assn. and reported that dual attendance programs were then operated in 36 states and that an additional five states were contemplating establishing such programs.

Two state courts -- Pennsylvania and Illinois -- have upheld the constitutionality of dual attendance, and the United States Supreme Court, almost 10 years ago, also upheld the constitutionality of a dual attendance practice, Williams said.

He concluded by noting that the terms "public school pupil" and "private school pupil" only denote where the child is presently in school. The same child may be both a public and a private school pupil -- the child is the same -- and he does not alter his citizenship by attending a private school, he added.

BILL WOULD END TAX ON PERSONAL PROPERTY

Long criticized as being unfair to all citizens, the personal property tax in Missouri may be abolished in this session of the Legislature.

Rep. Walter L. Meyer (D-St. Louis) has proposed a constitutional amendment which would allow the voters to register their opinion on whether to retain or abolish the tax.

Meyer explained that his House Joint Resolution was permissive legislation -- that is, first the voters would have to give authority to the Legislature to abolish the tax through the constitutional amendment, and then the General Assembly would have to pass a bill in another session which would effectively put it to an end.

Thus, he said, the change would not be so radical or quick to give people second doubts -- they would have a chance to express their opinion first, and the tax would not be abolished for at least another two years.

Meyer said there has been much inequity in the enforcement of the personal property tax and that in the metropolitan areas, it is practically impossible to enforce.

"Most people do not realize," he said, "that they are violating the law when they fail to report items such as suits, a mint coat, kitchen appliances and other household goods."

But, he explained, these things are rarely reported on personal property assessments.

To replace any lost revenue, Meyer plans to propose a flat increase of $50 on the assessed valuation of each car in the state, which he feels would come closest to making up the deficit of removing the personal property tax.

STANDARD TIME BILL MAY LOSE SUPPORT

A bill which would allow Missouri to remain on standard time, during the period when many states shift to daylight savings time, may never get out of committee since the Kansas Legislature recently voted down a similar proposal.

Rep. W. D. (Bill) Hibler (D-Brunswick), author of the bill, has explained that Congress last year passed an act which would allow an entire state to remain on standard time with approval of its Legislature.

Hibler's bill is backed by many of his constituents and several farm organizations, but favorable action on the measure was expected to depend on what the Kansas Legislature would do. Since that body voted down the proposal, Hibler's bill is expected to lose considerable support.

PROPOSE BONUS FOR WAR VETERANS

Two bills introduced in the Missouri House of Representatives would give bonuses to veterans who served during the periods of World War II and the Korean conflict.

Reps. Edna Eads (R-Bonne Terre) and Elsa Hill (D-St. Louis) introduced the measures which would provide a bonus of $5 for each month served by a veteran stationed in the United States during the war periods and $15 for veterans who were stationed overseas.

Bonuses are not to exceed $500 and the veteran must have been honorably discharged. Conscientious objectors are exempted who may have served during these periods.

A minimum flat bonus of $10 per month served would be established for any veteran with a service-connected disability even though the service was a domestic one.

BILL WOULD UPGRADE STANDARDS FOR EGGS

A bill proposed by Rep. Ruben Shapeler (D-Butler) would upgrade the regulations pertaining to the sale of eggs, and re-define egg as "raw egg in the shell that are the produce of the domesticated chicken."

The bill also would re-define consumer as one who buys eggs for food in his own home and adds the definition of "institutional consumer" as one who uses eggs for food, and shall include restaurants, hotels, cafeterias, hospitals, nursing homes, state institutions, jails and other establishments.

Nothing in the act prohibits the sale of eggs produced on the farm and sold directly to the consumer, except that such eggs must be produced by hens maintained on the farm from which they are sold.

In addition, a Missouri producer of eggs selling ungraded eggs from his own flock production is exempt from the provisions of the act, except that, if such producer desires to sell graded eggs, he may do so if he complies with the act.

WOULD PERMIT SUNDAY LIQUOR SALES

A bill introduced in the House by Rep. Thomas F. Ryan (D-Kansas City) would allow sale of liquor by the drink in all cities of the first class and in all cities allowing the sale of liquor by the drink and located in counties of the first class.

The bill places a time limitation of 1 p.m. to 12 midnight on the sale of liquor by the drink on Sunday.

LOBBYISTS OBJECTING TO BILL ASSIGNMENTS

Several veteran lobbyists in Jefferson City recently remarked that this is the first session of the Legislature in which they remember so many bills were assigned to a committee where the chairman is also the author of the bill.

Lobbyists who have opposed some of these bills complain that it puts them in an awkward situation when the bill's author has complete control over the hearing.

The Speaker of the House has the right to assign bills to committees, but there appears to have been no objections from the floor when a bill was assigned to a committee whose chairman also is the author.

Many of the lobbyists feel that the House should establish a rule that would designate another committee member to take over the chairmanship when the chairman had a direct interest in the legislation being heard.

"For a chairman to control the hearing of his own bill seems to violate the spirit of conflict of interest," one lobbyist said.

From The Upper Room

The peace of God, which passeth all understanding shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus. (Philippians 4:7)

W. H. GILMER JR., coordinator of the North New Madrid County neighborhood service center at Big Ridge school, inspects donated clothing which will be renovated and distributed to low-income families.

One of a Series

Happiness Is Helping Others at NSC

By Warren Sokolis

MATTHEWS -- A senior citizens program, designed to help not only participants but economically deprived families, has started at the North New Madrid County neighborhood service center at Big Ridge school.

Women have been restoring old clothing and making quilts that are given needy families in Matthews, Canalou and Morehouse.

One of the benefits is the help provided economically deprived families, Harland Gilmer Jr., center coordinator, explained.

Donated used clothing is renovated by the women, who meet Tuesdays from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Tears are patched and adult clothing is made into children's garments.

Clothing needs are great, Gilmer said. A survey showed that about 75 per cent of the families in the area are low income (less than $3,000 annual income).

Many families with children are unable to clothe them adequately. Often children do not have shoes.

Although much clothing has been given away, the center still needs more clothing and children's shoes.

Women also are making quilts. More tops and other materials for making quilts are needed.

The program serves a social need for the women. "Senior citizens are the most neglected segment of our society, and the monotony of sitting at home alone with nothing to do gives them the feeling that they are no longer needed by the rest of society," Gilmer said.

The women have found that they can be useful citizens. "They go home in a better mood than when they came," Gilmer observed.

The NSC, which is one of 24 neighborhood service centers in the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, also is helping families overcome other problems.

The majority are employed as farm laborers, a seasonal occupation. Most of them are on welfare rolls.

The center's two aides, Ola Goodwin and Dimple Malloy, spend most of their time helping them, Gilmer said. They provide transportation to doctors, grocery stores and other places inaccessible to persons, who do not have cars or who are unable to reach New Madrid.

Gilmer acts as a referral agent for welfare and employment offices. He takes names of those, who are seeking employment, and refers them to the state employment service.

Gilmer said that the center has obtained assistance for a dozen families, who needed help but had no means of support.

The center was responsible for having three senior citizen homes built and for getting food for two dozen families, who did not know that such commodities were available.

Many residents depend on the center for transportation.

Some low - income parents do not send their children to school. In such cases the center reports the incidents to the traunt officer or to the welfare office (if the family is on welfare).

There are two causes for truancy in low-income families, Gilmer said. Many parents are ashamed to send their children to school because the children have ragged clothes, no shoes or both. Some parents do not realize the importance of education as a means of escaping poverty.

In looking to the future, Gilmer expressed hope that an adult basic education program can be provided.

ABE funds of $6,700 have been approved by DAEOC, and the center is awaiting final approval from the Office of Economic Opportunity's regional office at Kansas City.

The need for basic education is great, Gilmer said. About 100 of the 2,500 persons surveyed in the Matthews, Canalou and Morehouse areas have expressed a desire to participate. Many are nonreaders.

The Missouri Extension service is working to set up a class for home course cooking or sewing. A Head Start program may begin later.

The center has been allotted $19,000 by DAEOC through November.

Members of the community action agency's board and I. B. McNew of Morehouse, president; Randolph Kem of Matthews, vice president; Mrs. David Croom of Sikeston Route 3, secretary-treasurer; C. J. Ralph of Canalou, Wyatt Cobb, Harold Burch and Lingle Parker, all of Matthews, Mrs. J. H. Calvin of Sikeston Route 3 and Mrs. Sue Nimmo of the Delmo project, adivsory board members, and Gene Curtis of Matthews and Melvin Clark and Charles Menees, both of Morehouse, county board members.

ELDERLY WOMEN make quilts at the North New Madrid County neighborhood service center. The quilts are made from materials donated to the center and are distributed to needy families.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I am going with a young man who has a lot of ability and a great future, but he behaves so peculiarly at times it is frightening.

At first I thought he had been drinking. Last night he confessed that he has been sniffing glue.

He claims glue sniffing is not dangerous, not habit forming, and it gives him a grand feeling of exhilaration. I have never known anyone who did this and I wish you would tell me if I am worrying needlessly, as he says - PLENTY UPSET

Dear Plenty: Glue sniffing is a form of intoxication, only the sniffer uses toxic fumes instead of liquor.

It is indeed dangerous because the fumes can damage the liver as well as other vital organs, including the brain. It is not habit forming in the sense that it leads to addiction, but glue sniffers have a tendency to go from glue to narcotics in search of bigger kicks.

People have been seriously injured and killed while under the influence of glue because the judgment is often grossly distorted after several whiffs. Anyone who thinks glue sniffing is not a dangerous practice is kidding himself.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to address this letter to all you middle-aged women who are feeling sorry for yourselves because your children are grown and no longer need you. No doubt you've been thinking of the past -- longing to relive those days when the kids were running around the house, playmates coming and going, toys scattered all over, good night kisses and the whole bit.

Well, you've got short memories, Mommie, so I want to remind you of what it was REALLY like because I am in the middle of those days right now and I KNOW.

My three children are under six years of age and they are driving me nuts. Between the phone, the washing, the ironing, the marketing, the diapering, the refereeing, the cleaning, the cooking and the mending, I am ready to flip my wig.

Do I feel needed? No. I feel harassed, frustrated, and defeated.

You are luck to have the work and worry behind you. I'm living for the day when my kids are grown and on their own. There, I hope you feel better. -- LIVING THROUGH IT

Dear Living: What you need is one day a week off so you can enjoy your kids instead of feeling trapped. Make a trade-off arrangement with a friend or a relative if you can't afford a sitter, but for heaven's sake get some relief before you konk out.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are opposed to inter-faith marriages because I heard you say so when you spoke in our high school a few years ago.

Now I am going with a young man whose religion is different from mine. I wish I could remember what you said -- the reasons, I mean. Please go over them again. Thank you. -- UNDECIDED GIRL.

Dear Girl: The records show that individuals who share the same religious beliefs have five times as good a chance of staying married as those who do not. Since marriage is becoming increasingly risky (almost one out of three flop) it makes sense to start out on as solid a footing as possible.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE
By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE SNOWBALL KID

Perry was driving along when he was suddenly bombarded by a foray of snowballs that had been heaved by a group of children standing near the road. Jumping out of his car (having stopped it first), Perry caught up to 10-year-old Dennis as the latter was about to reach home. Grabbing the youngster by the arm, Perry drove the snowball kid into town and turned him over to a police officer with the information that Dennis had been endangering motorists by throwing snowballs at passing cars.

"The guy was a big bully," the boy's lawyer told the judge. "He had no right to push Dennis around or to take him anywhere in his car."

"What are you talking about?" was Perry's answer. "If I hadn't turned that kid over to the policeman, his snowball throwing might have caused a serious accident. Under the circumstances, I obviously acted both intelligently and reasonably."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the Snowball Kid to recover?

This is how the Judge ruled: Dennis collected. The Judge held that while a motorist may take reascnable steps to prevent a child from throwing snowballs at passing automobiles, putting him in a car, a few yards from the child's home, and then driving him into town to turn him over to a policeman is unreasonable as a matter of law. That from the time Dennis was put into the car, his liberty was illegally restrained so as to constitute false imprisonment.

(Based upon a 1966 Wisconsin Supreme Court Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

Robbery requires the use of force. In the absense of force, there's no robbery. As an example, to take a wallet from a sleeping person is not robbery since no force was necessary.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 28, the 59th day of 1967. There are 306 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1854, members of the so called "Free Soil" Democratic faction and the Whig party met at Ripon, Wis. They adopted the name "Republican" to describe their common principles. Out of many such meetings across the nation, what is now known as the Republican party gradually emerged.

On this date:

In 1483, Italian painter Raphael was born.

In 1861, the Territory of Colorado was organized.

In 1933, a Nazi decree suppressed civil liberties in Germany.

In 1943, the U.S. Navy launched the aircraft carrier Monterey.

In 1946, Switzerland announced the Prussian goose-step no longer would be used in its army.

Ten years ago — At the end of three days of talks at the White House, President Dwight D. Eisenhower and French Premier Guy Mollet reaffirmed "the long-standing and friendly ties" between the United States and France.

Five years ago — In Peru, a mudslide buried completely the small village of Conchucos, claiming the lives of some 60 villagers.

One year ago — American astronauts Elliott See Jr. and Charles Bassett were killed when their T38 jet trainer crashed.

CARNIVAL By Dick Turner

SIDE GLANCES By Gill Fox

When Rosen completed a technical explanation of the proposed facility, Rep. Thomas G. Morris, D-N.M., asked "are you saying this facility offers the greatest hope for cancer treatment we've ever had?"

"Yes, sir," Rosen replied. "I said it weakly two years ago and now I say it with great emphasis."

Hearing on Sikeston Air Bid March 21

The often postponed civil aeronautics board hearing, which will consider Sikeston's application for commercial air service, has been set for March 21, at Oklahoma City.

The hearing was postponed previously pending possible merger of Ozark and Central airlines.

City Attorney Manuel Drumm, City Manager W. Raymert Miller, Bob Matthews, Paul Fisher and other Sikeston businessmen probably will attend, Drumm said today.

City officials sent a report to the CAB in Washington, D. C. in July containing information about the city's business potential, the need for a commercial airline service, and requested that Sikeston be granted commercial service.

Sikeston has been trying to get a route certified by the CAB for service to and from Memphis and Dyersburg, Tenn. and St. Louis.

$1,600 Watch Is Recovered

A $1,600 watch reported lost by Mrs. Lee R. Bowman, 226 Tanner, was found and returned to her today.

A Canalou family, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hill and their daughters, Sondra and Cindy, found the watch Saturday. It was lying on Front street near Graber's Store.

One of the daughters picked up the watch and at first thought it was a toy. The mother then noticed how it shined.

The watch is tiny and has 32 diamonds on the platinum band.

The Hill family notified Mrs. Bowman after reading about the loss in the Daily Standard.

"My faith in human nature was restored," Mrs. Bowman said.

She reported the loss Sunday to auxiliary policeman James Hahs.

The watch was undamaged, except for a broken link, which caused it to be lost, Mrs. Bowman said. A $50 reward was made to the Hill family.

Hitch Hiker Changes Story Of Robbery

Two truck drivers for North American Van Lines who were arrested Tuesday afternoon in Hayti by the state highway patrol and charged with robbery were released today on payment of court costs, assistant prosecuting attorney Tom Gilmore said. The charges will be dropped.

The men were identified as Bob Lawrence, New Haven, Conn., and Grover Fitzpatrick, Oklahoma City. They appeared in magistrate court today and were given an additional day to seek legal counsel.

However, later Robert Connine, Fenton, a hitchhiker, who had signed a complaint against the men charging that they beat him and took $200 from him, changed his story.

Connine said no money was taken so the men will be released, Scott County Deputy Eddie Michael said.

The truck driver picked Connine up in Fenton. He was hitch hiking to Birmingham. Fitzpatrick and Connine began arguing and came to blows at Benton Monday, Michael said. Lawrence, the driver, stopped the first fight. Connine and Fitzpatrick began arguing again when the three men reached Miner. Lawrence then told them to settle their argument outside the truck and Connine lost the fight, Michael said.

Rotary Observes 2 Anniversaries

Rotarians observed the 20th anniversary of the founding of the Sikeston club and the 62nd birthday of Rotary International last night at the Rustic Rock Inn.

Dr. Frank Sisson, a past district governor of Rotary International, called on the club members to renew their dedication to the organization's service ideal.

"Light candles in the hearts of men which never will be put out," he urged.

"Rotary ideals have enriched our lives," he said in reviewing the history of the organization started in Chicago Feb. 23, 1905 by a lonely lawyer, Paul Harris, who craved fellowship. The first club was formed for mutual benefit of members but helping others subsequently became the object with the adoption of the motto "service above self."

The Sikeston club was formed Feb. 18, 1947 under sponsorship of the West Plains club. It has three charter members, Dr. Sisson, a chiropractor; S. F. Duckworth and W.J. (Chip) Schmerbauch.

Attention was called at last night's meeting to the 20-year perfect attendance record of Sisson and Schmerbauch.

Wayne Woodard introduced Sisson, who was the club's first president, served as district governor, district treasurer and district secretary of Rotary International and was for five years a representative of the president of R.I.

Sisson said that the first project of the Chicago Rotary club was provision of public rest rooms and that the first undertaking of the Sikeston club was a reevaluation of the city's tax structure.

When the Sikeston club was organized there were 300,000 Rotarians, he said. There are now 607,340 members in 134 countries.

The Sikeston club has sponsored study abroad under one Rotary International fellowship - Mrs. William L. Kopp of Madison, Wis., the former Alice Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Martin. Mrs. Kopp studied music in Paris.

Sisson said that the club had sponsored three R.I. seminars, a district conference of R.I. five years ago, had helped the needy, made it possible for young men and women to attend college, organized three Rotary clubs, and will be host to another R.I. district conference April 20-22.

Terry Conn announced that three foreign students at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau will give the program March 13, which will be a club ladies night.

Dr. Ralph Wiggins was a guest of Sisson and Jim Cox of Memphis, a guest of Raymond Leible. John W. Skelton of Dexter was a visiting Rotarian.

Charles Green led the club singing and was accompanied by Mary Ann Bruce at the piano.

House Advances School Aid Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The House moved a bill forward toward final passage today that would allow schools to estimate daily average attendance for their share of funds from the school foundation program.

Schools now collect state funds from the foundation program based upon daily average attendance from the previous year.

School districts in rapidly growing areas have found that the previous year's attendance does not reflect their needs today.

The bill provides a penalty of 6 per cent interest for over estimating attendance.

An amendment was added that would make the bill effective upon the signature of the governor should it also pass the Senate.

Rep. Martin Degenhardt, R-Perryville, and others proposed a change in the constitution that would give House members four year terms beginning with the 1970 elections.

Members from even numbered districts would run for four year terms in 1970 and those from odd-numbered districts in 1972.

The plan also sets up provision for a nonpartisan commission for re-districting the House. If the commission could not come up with a satisfactory realignment plan within six months then the task would be turned over to the six commissioners of the Missouri Supreme Court.

Monday night a House committee heard heated arguments on a bill to let the people vote on the issue of daylight saving time Nov. 7.

Unless the legislature acts to prevent it, Missouri will join the rest of the nation in going on D.S.T. the last Sunday in April.

One woman said "I'm tired of putting my kids to bed before dark so I can get them up before daylight to catch the school bus."

Rep. W. D. Hibler, D-Brunswick, sponsoring the proposal, said he had received letters of complaint from men who said the extra hour of daylight caused their wives to make them do too much work around the house. And wives complained that it just gave their husbands an extra hour to drink in taverns.

Opponents of the bill will be heard later.

City Adopts Legalizing Ordinances

Three ordinances legalizing city government procedures were passed in a brief session of the city council at 5 p.m. Monday in the city administration building.

The first ordinance passed formally combines the revenues from the water works with the sewage system. The revenues have been combined in practice, City Attorney Manuel Drumm said.

The combining of revenues essentially allows money collected from water bills to be used for the construction of sewers. There now is no sewer charge.

The other two ordinances were described as carry all measures to adopt the work that has been done to date since the passage of a $1,200,000 water and sewer bond issue at a July 27, 1965, election, Drumm said.

The ordinance formalized the setting up of sinking funds in the city's accounting system for the water and sewer bond issue. A sinking fund has been in existence since the passage of the bond issue.

The sinking fund rate in 1965 and 1966 amounted to 29 cents of the $1.80 per $100 valuation paid in city taxes.

The ordinances were required procedure for the sale of $600,000 in revenue bonds and $600,000 in general obligation bonds for water and sewer construction.

On Feb. 7 the council passed a resolution authorizing the mayor to sell the $600,000, in general obligation bonds to the First National Bank of St. Louis and the $600,000 in general revenue bonds to Zahner and Co. of Kansas City.

Willie Kelly, Benton, charged with operating a motor vehicle with inadequate brakes, fined $5 and costs.

Floyd Hemphill, 300 Alabama, charged with driving while intoxicated, sentenced to six months in jail, stayed during good behavior and given until April 11, to pay court costs. Operator's license revoked.

Albert D. Adams, Robinson Apts., Sikeston, charged with illegal possession, fined $50 and costs.

Eleven Point Included In Scenic River

WASHINGTON AP -- Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Washington, of the Senate Interior Committee introduced Monday a bill to create a national system of scenic rivers.

Jackson said hearings on the measure by his committee will be held April 13-14.

He said the bill was similar to one which passed the Senate last year. It would propose an initial system of nine rivers; 35 others would be studied for possible future inclusion.

The nine rivers, or parts of them, are in Salmon and Middle Fork of the Clearwater in Idaho; the Rogue in Oregon; the Rio Grande in New Mexico; the Eleven Point in Arkansas and Missouri; the Cacapon and Shenandoah in West Virginia; the St. Croix in Minnesota and Wisconsin and the Wolf in Wisconsin.

Accident Alters Altitude Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) - The widely used four-engine DC6 and DC7 airliners have been ordered by the Federal Aviation Agency to stop flying at high altitudes until assured it is safe to resume.

Citing an accident last Friday in which a gaping hole erupted in the side of a Northeast Airlines DC6B, the FAA said that DC6s and DC7s must temporarily operate at altitudes where cabin pressurization is unnecessary.

The blowout accident has been tentatively attributed to failure of a weakened part of the fuselage because of the plane's internal air pressure.

As of the end of 1965, the FAA said, scheduled airlines were using 64 DC7s and 177 of the smaller DC6s. A spokesman for Douglas Aircraft, builders of the planes, said it was likely about 750 are still in service throughout the world - two thirds of the number built between 1946 and 1959.

Jackson Votes On School Bond

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today was election day for several Missouri communities which voted on a variety of bond issues. There was a city council primary election in Kansas City where a light turnout was expected.

One of the larger propositions was a $495,000 school bond issue for Jackson. Another school bond issue of $455,760 was considered at Mexico, which would use the money for an area vocational and technical school.

Chillicothe voted on a $350,000 proposal for acquisition of a new high school site near a vocational and technical school nearing completion.

Hurrt to Locate At Marceline

The Hurrt Fabricating Co., which had announced plans to locate a metal products plant here, has decided to go to Marceline.

The announcement was made Monday by Jake Hurrt president of the Chaney Fence Corp. in Florissant. Chaney Fence is parent organization of Hurrt.

Fielding Potashnick, immediate past president of the Sikeston Industrial Development Corp., said that Hurrt wanted an answer regarding an application to the Small Business Administration for a loan by Feb. 15. Money was needed to construct a building.

The SIDC has an application for a loan pending with the SBA. It probably will be canceled, Potashnick said.

The SDIC had obtained a lease on five acres north of the Tucker Truck lines near the Sikeston Airport for the construction of the facility.

The lease on the property will automatically expire.

Hurrt would have employed 50 skilled workers in two years, with an annual payroll of $200,000.

A building for the plant was found in Marceline.

Johnson Asks Congress to Seek Lower Health Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Johnson told Congress today he wants the government to seek ways to lower health costs.

He also called for action to promote the expansion of noncommercial television and radio, including especially education programs.

In a special message on education and health, Johnson announced that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare will hold a national conference on medical costs "to discuss how we can lower the costs of medical services without impairing the quality."

The President also recommended that Congress create a Corporation for Public Television that would use both public and private funds to support noncommercial broadcasting, both via television and radio.

Picking up an idea that has been advocated by the Ford Foundation, which has urged establishment of such a corporation, Johnson recommended a study of "the practicality and the economic advantages of using communication satellites to establish an educational television and radio network."

These were the highlights of the multipoint message in which Johnson emphasized that this was the keynote:

"I do not recommend more of the same—but more that is better: to solve old problems, to create new institutions, to fulfill the potential of each individual in our land."

The President noted that average hospital costs have more than tripled since 1950 and that other medical expenses have risen sharply.

For that reason, he said, he wants a national conference to bring together leaders of the medical community and members of the public to try to find ways to reverse the upward trend.

In addition, Johnson said, the new National Center for Health Services Research and Development will concentrate first on seeking "new ways to improve the use of professional and auxiliary workers—a key factor in reducing hospital costs."

As for noncommercial television, the President said this holds out a potential promise of bringing to its audience "the excitement of excellence in every field." He said it "will not only instruct, but inspire and uplift our people."

Today, he said, educational and other noncommercial television "is reaching only a fraction of its potential audience -- and achieving only a fraction of its potential worth."

Science Fair Will Be Friday

The junior high school science fair will be held Friday from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. in the cafeteria.

Pupils in grades 7-9 will have science projects on display for the public. A panel of judges from the high school science department will select winners from six cagegories: botany, medicine and health, zoology, chemistry and biochemistry, earth and space science and physics.

Those exhibits judged the best will be entered in the regional science fair at Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau, April 4-7.

The district fair will have two divisions, a junior high and a senior high school division.

Bill Consular Treaty Wins Committee Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) - The consular treaty with the Soviet Union was approved today on a 15-4 vote by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The treaty now goes to the floor where Republican opponents may continue their opposition to the agreement as an unnecessary concession to Moscow that will help North Vietnam and facilitate Communist espionage.

A two-thirds majority approval is necessary for Senate ratification.

Rocket Funds Sought

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson asked Congress today for money to begin the development of a nuclear-powered rocket engine, the Rover.

For this and other scientific projects, Johnson asked a total of $149.8 million for use in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

In addition to the nuclear-powered rocket engine, Johnson asked funds for a physics laboratory for basic physical and biochemical research and a specialized facility for further thermonuclear fission as a potential source of electricity.

"The projects will advance America's ability to harness atomic energy for the peaceful exploration of space," Johnson stated. "They will also help us chart new courses in nuclear science."

Johnson said development of a nuclear-powered rocket engine will take time, and that present plans call for delivery of the first test model in about 1971.

A number of flight and ground tests will precede full use of the engine in space programs, Johnson said.

"That is why I have asked Congress to appropriate funds this year to lay the groundwork for this important program," he explained.

Johnson seeks $91 million in fiscal 1968 for the rocket development and the remaining $58.8 million to develop the two new research facilities.

Both new research facilities will be built by the Atomic Energy Commission at its Los Alamos, N.M., scientific laboratory.

Johnson said government scientists and engineers successfully have tested reactors and engines with 55,000 pounds of thrust, and have concluded that a much more powerful engine would have distinct advantages over those now in use.

The nuclear-powered engine is expected to have a thrust of 200,000 to 250,000 pounds.

This, Johnson said, will almost double the weight of the present pay load of the Saturn 5 vehicle, increase ability to maneuver spacecraft, and be used in future manned landings and exploration of distant planets.

Dr. Louis Rosen, a division head at the Los Alamos facility, said the physics facility sought by Johnson will permit scientists to try to develop a precise new ray for destroying cancerous tumors.

X-rays are now the classic treatment for destroying the

50 Paintings Will Go On Display in Charleston

CHARLESTON -- The March art exhibit at the Mississippi County Historical society and art gallery will be 50 paintings -- 30 oils and 20 watercolors -- from the Grumbacher collection under the auspices of the Old Bergen Art Guild, Bayonne, N.J. The Charleston Lions Club is the sponsor.

The show, titled "The Palette Reveals the Artist," is a collection by nationally known artists.

Of the 50 artists represented, one of the best known is Doug Kingman. Kingman, born in California and reared in China, has received international recognition for his watercolors. Because of his background, when "55 Days At Peking," a movie about the Boxer rebellion in China was being filmed, Kingman was commissioned by the producer to do 50 watercolor background paintings.

The show begins Wednesday and will end March 21. There will be an open house Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

New museum and gallery hours are 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. daily and Sunday.

An invitation is extended to schools to bring classes or groups to view the paints.

Hearing on Sikeston Air Bid March 21

The often postponed civil aeronautics board hearing, which will consider Sikeston's application for commercial air service, has been set for March 21, at Oklahoma City.

The hearing was postponed previously pending possible merger of Ozark and Central airlines.

City Attorney Manuel Drumm, City Manager W. Raymert Miller, Bob Matthews, Paul Fisher and other Sikeston businessmen probably will attend, Drumm said today.

City officials sent a report to the CAB in Washington, D. C. in July containing information about the city's business potential, the need for a commercial airline service, and requested that Sikeston be granted commercial service.

Sikeston has been trying to get a route certified by the CAB for service to and from Memphis and Dyersburg, Tenn. and St. Louis.

$1,600 Watch Is Recovered

A $1,600 watch reported lost by Mrs. Lee R. Bowman, 226 Tanner, was found and returned to her today.

A Canalou family, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hill and their daughters, Sondra and Cindy, found the watch Saturday. It was lying on Front street near Graber's Store.

One of the daughters picked up the watch and at first thought it was a toy. The mother then noticed how it shined.

The watch is tiny and has 32 diamonds on the platinum band.

The Hill family notified Mrs. Bowman after reading about the loss in the Daily Standard.

"My faith in human nature was restored," Mrs. Bowman said.

She reported the loss Sunday to auxiliary policeman James Hahs.

The watch was undamaged, except for a broken link, which caused it to be lost, Mrs. Bowman said. A $50 reward was made to the Hill family.

Hitch Hiker Changes Story Of Robbery

Two truck drivers for North American Van Lines who were arrested Tuesday afternoon in Hayti by the state highway patrol and charged with robbery were released today on payment of court costs, assistant prosecuting attorney Tom Gilmore said. The charges will be dropped.

The men were identified as Bob Lawrence, New Haven, Conn., and Grover Fitzpatrick, Oklahoma City. They appeared in magistrate court today and were given an additional day to seek legal counsel.

However, later Robert Connine, Fenton, a hitchhiker, who had signed a complaint against the men charging that they beat him and took $200 from him, changed his story.

Connine said no money was taken so the men will be released, Scott County Deputy Eddie Michael said.

The truck driver picked Connine up in Fenton. He was hitch hiking to Birmingham. Fitzpatrick and Connine began arguing and came to blows at Benton Monday, Michael said. Lawrence, the driver, stopped the first fight. Connine and Fitzpatrick began arguing again when the three men reached Miner. Lawrence then told them to settle their argument outside the truck and Connine lost the fight, Michael said.

Rotary Observes 2 Anniversaries

Rotarians observed the 20th anniversary of the founding of the Sikeston club and the 62nd birthday of Rotary International last night at the Rustic Rock Inn.

Dr. Frank Sisson, a past district governor of Rotary International, called on the club members to renew their dedication to the organization's service ideal.

"Light candles in the hearts of men which never will be put out," he urged.

"Rotary ideals have enriched our lives," he said in reviewing the history of the organization started in Chicago Feb. 23, 1905 by a lonely lawyer, Paul Harris, who craved fellowship. The first club was formed for mutual benefit of members but helping others subsequently became the object with the adoption of the motto "service above self."

The Sikeston club was formed Feb. 18, 1947 under sponsorship of the West Plains club. It has three charter members, Dr. Sisson, a chiropractor; S. F. Duckworth and W.J. (Chip) Schmerbauch.

Attention was called at last night's meeting to the 20-year perfect attendance record of Sisson and Schmerbauch.

Wayne Woodard introduced Sisson, who was the club's first president, served as district governor, district treasurer and district secretary of Rotary International and was for five years a representative of the president of R.I.

Sisson said that the first project of the Chicago Rotary club was provision of public rest rooms and that the first undertaking of the Sikeston club was a reevaluation of the city's tax structure.

When the Sikeston club was organized there were 300,000 Rotarians, he said. There are now 607,340 members in 134 countries.

The Sikeston club has sponsored study abroad under one Rotary International fellowship - Mrs. William L. Kopp of Madison, Wis., the former Alice Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Martin. Mrs. Kopp studied music in Paris.

Sisson said that the club had sponsored three R.I. seminars, a district conference of R.I. five years ago, had helped the needy, made it possible for young men and women to attend college, organized three Rotary clubs, and will be host to another R.I. district conference April 20-22.

Terry Conn announced that three foreign students at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau will give the program March 13, which will be a club ladies night.

Dr. Ralph Wiggins was a guest of Sisson and Jim Cox of Memphis, a guest of Raymond Leible. John W. Skelton of Dexter was a visiting Rotarian.

Charles Green led the club singing and was accompanied by Mary Ann Bruce at the piano.

Accident Alters Altitude Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) - The widely used four-engine DC6 and DC7 airliners have been ordered by the Federal Aviation Agency to stop flying at high altitudes until assured it is safe to resume.

Citing an accident last Friday in which a gaping hole erupted in the side of a Northeast Airlines DC6B, the FAA said that DC6s and DC7s must temporarily operate at altitudes where cabin pressurization is unnecessary.

The blowout accident has been tentatively attributed to failure of a weakened part of the fuselage because of the plane's internal air pressure.

As of the end of 1965, the FAA said, scheduled airlines were using 64 DC7s and 177 of the smaller DC6s. A spokesman for Douglas Aircraft, builders of the planes, said it was likely about 750 are still in service throughout the world - two thirds of the number built between 1946 and 1959.

Jackson Votes On School Bond

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today was election day for several Missouri communities which voted on a variety of bond issues. There was a city council primary election in Kansas City where a light turnout was expected.

One of the larger propositions was a $495,000 school bond issue for Jackson. Another school bond issue of $455,760 was considered at Mexico, which would use the money for an area vocational and technical school.

Chillicothe voted on a $350,000 proposal for acquisition of a new high school site near a vocational and technical school nearing completion.

Hurrt to Locate At Marceline

The Hurrt Fabricating Co., which had announced plans to locate a metal products plant here, has decided to go to Marceline.

The announcement was made Monday by Jake Hurrt president of the Chaney Fence Corp. in Florissant. Chaney Fence is parent organization of Hurrt.

Fielding Potashnick, immediate past president of the Sikeston Industrial Development Corp., said that Hurrt wanted an answer regarding an application to the Small Business Administration for a loan by Feb. 15. Money was needed to construct a building.

The SIDC has an application for a loan pending with the SBA. It probably will be canceled, Potashnick said.

The SDIC had obtained a lease on five acres north of the Tucker Truck lines near the Sikeston Airport for the construction of the facility.

The lease on the property will automatically expire.

Hurrt would have employed 50 skilled workers in two years, with an annual payroll of $200,000.

A building for the plant was found in Marceline.

Johnson Asks Congress to Seek Lower Health Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Johnson told Congress today he wants the government to seek ways to lower health costs.

He also called for action to promote the expansion of noncommercial television and radio, including especially education programs.

In a special message on education and health, Johnson announced that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare will hold a national conference on medical costs "to discuss how we can lower the costs of medical services without impairing the quality."

The President also recommended that Congress create a Corporation for Public Television that would use both public and private funds to support noncommercial broadcasting, both via television and radio.

Picking up an idea that has been advocated by the Ford Foundation, which has urged establishment of such a corporation, Johnson recommended a study of "the practicality and the economic advantages of using communication satellites to establish an educational television and radio network."

These were the highlights of the multipoint message in which Johnson emphasized that this was the keynote:

"I do not recommend more of the same—but more that is better: to solve old problems, to create new institutions, to fulfill the potential of each individual in our land."

The President noted that average hospital costs have more than tripled since 1950 and that other medical expenses have risen sharply.

For that reason, he said, he wants a national conference to bring together leaders of the medical community and members of the public to try to find ways to reverse the upward trend.

In addition, Johnson said, the new National Center for Health Services Research and Development will concentrate first on seeking "new ways to improve the use of professional and auxiliary workers—a key factor in reducing hospital costs."

As for noncommercial television, the President said this holds out a potential promise of bringing to its audience "the excitement of excellence in every field." He said it "will not only instruct, but inspire and uplift our people."

Today, he said, educational and other noncommercial television "is reaching only a fraction of its potential audience -- and achieving only a fraction of its potential worth."

Rocket Funds Sought

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson asked Congress today for money to begin the development of a nuclear-powered rocket engine, the Rover.

For this and other scientific projects, Johnson asked a total of $149.8 million for use in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

In addition to the nuclear-powered rocket engine, Johnson asked funds for a physics laboratory for basic physical and biochemical research and a specialized facility for further thermonuclear fission as a potential source of electricity.

"The projects will advance America's ability to harness atomic energy for the peaceful exploration of space," Johnson stated. "They will also help us chart new courses in nuclear science."

Johnson said development of a nuclear - powered rocket engine will take time, and that present plans call for delivery of the first test model in about 1971.

A number of flight and ground tests will precede full use of the engine in space programs, Johnson said.

"That is why I have asked Congress to appropriate funds this year to lay the groundwork for this important program," he explained.

Johnson seeks $91 million in fiscal 1968 for the rocket development and the remaining $58.8 million to develop the two new research facilities.

Both new research facilities will be built by the Atomic Energy Commission at its Los Alamos, N.M., scientific laboratory.

Johnson said government scientists and engineers successfully have tested reactors and engines with 55,000 pounds of thrust, and have concluded that a much more powerful engine would have distinct advantages over those now in use.

The nuclear-powered engine is expected to have a thrust of 200,000 to 250,000 pounds.

This, Johnson said, will almost double the weight of the present pay load of the Saturn 5 vehicle, increase ability to maneuver spacecraft, and be used in future manned landings and exploration of distant planets.

Dr. Louis Rosen, a division head at the Los Alamos facility, said the physics facility sought by Johnson will permit scientists to try to develop a precise new ray for destroying cancerous tumors.

X-rays are now the classic treatment for destroying the

50 Paintings Will Go On Display in Charleston

CHARLESTON -- The March art exhibit at the Mississippi County Historical society and art gallery will be 50 paintings -- 30 oils and 20 watercolors -- from the Grumbacher collection under the auspices of the Old Bergen Art Guild, Bayonne, N.J. The Charleston Lions Club is the sponsor.

The show, titled "The Palette Reveals the Artist," is a collection by nationally known artists.

Of the 50 artists represented, one of the best known is Doug Kingman. Kingman, born in California and reared in China, has received international recognition for his watercolors. Because of his background, when "55 Days At Peking," a movie about the Boxer rebellion in China was being filmed, Kingman was commissioned by the producer to do 50 watercolor background paintings.

The show begins Wednesday and will end March 21. There will be an open house Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

New museum and gallery hours are 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. daily and Sunday.

An invitation is extended to schools to bring classes or groups to view the paints.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

The House Ways and Means Committee on Wednesday (March 1) begins hearings on President Johnson's proposals on Social Security expansion.

President Johnson is urging on Congress what he calls "the greatest improvement in living standards for the elderly since the Social Security Act was passed in 1935." Implicit is a sweeping change in the whole philosophy of the Social Security system and indeed of the nation's obligations to the aged.

The President's Message on Older Americans which he sent to Congress on Jan. 23 made surprisingly little impact on general news media. It raised a flurry of alarm in the business press, however, and that concern is bound to grow.

What the President wants is a 20 per cent increase in Social Security benefits. He also is asking for reform of tax laws applying to the elderly. He proposes to pay for part of the increases with sharply higher Social Security taxes on employees and employers alike. But even if Congress votes the tax rises, the expansion of the system will mean another giant step away from the concept of the idea of Social Security as insurance and toward welfare government.

To be sure, President Johnson said that our program "must continue on an actuarially sound basis." Every President from Franklin D. Roosevelt on has made much of actuarial soundness. But in fact, a Social Security debt of more than $400 billion exists right now. This sum represents the difference between the present value of future pension rights and the present value of future tax collections at present rates, plus accumulated reserves.

The Johnson proposals would push that debt to $500 billion. Young people, and the more affluent of all ages, eventually would pay the bill.

President Johnson said in considering the needs of the elderly "our goal is not merely to prolong our citizens' lives, but to enrich them." President George P. Meany of the AFL-CIO said that a 20 per cent increase in benefits would constitute "a substantial down-payment on what we firmly believe is the needed 50 per cent rise in benefits."

The Meany statement is a portent of what's to come. The AFL-CIO and its state and local affiliates are prepared to spend thousands of dollars on a mass education and pressure program in the next few months.

Huge rallies are planned for March 12 in Boston, Cleveland, Cincinnait, Chicago, New Orleans, New York, Milwaukee, Denver, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, and Seattle. In St. Louis the rally will be March 10; in Pittsburgh, April 2. Further rallies are planned for Detroit, Oklahoma City, and Daytona Beach, and others in the works.

This is the kind of muscle that Congressmen find hard to resist. And it's pushing in the direction of financing of some Social Security payments out of general revenues.

Why do drivers get lost?

A recent survey of cabbies, transportation firms, truck drivers and the state police disclosed these reasons:

--Inattention, listening to the radio, talking and many other momentary distractions may cause drivers to miss important signs or take the wrong turns.

--Drivers may become confused by too many signs, or by driving in the wrong lane or in an unfamiliar city. Arguments and back-seat driving have caused drivers to lose their way, too.

--Many motorists do not plan thoroughly enough in advance of their trip. They are unaware of route changes or turn-offs. Some don't even bother to carry maps, say perplexed state police.

--In some instances, lost drivers genuinely seem to have a poor sense of direction. After a few turns, they are unable to tell in what direction they are going.

--Speed causes many drivers to miss important directional signs. They whiz by...and end up miles away from their destinations.

How can you avoid getting lost? Try these tips:

.Plan your trip well in advance. Look at maps, study the route and stay on the one you choose. Know where you are going and when to expect the turn-offs leading to your destination. Equip your car with a compass to check your sense of direction.

.Watch those signs. Fewer drivers would get lost, say state police, if they paid more attention to the large green directional signs used on most major routes today. These signs, coated with materials that reflect sign messages in headlight brilliance, can be seen at greater distances, even at night.

.Slow down for congested areas, intersections, cloverleafs and turn-offs. This gives you time to make the correct turn or get into the proper lane. Such precaution also lessens the chance of an accident.

.When visiting friends in a strange city, phone ahead and ask for directions to their home. This may save wasted time and hot tempers. Cabbies say you should always carry the street guide for a strange city.

.Carry maps of your route on the trip. Consult them when necessary to keep yourself on course.

.If you do get lost, stop and inquire. Call the local police or fire station for information. Listen carefully to the advice and you should be back on the road - headed in the right direction - with a minimum of delay.

To college students in Portland, Ore., John D. Gray, president of Omark Industries recently said, in part:

"...American business needs the today's young intellectual. There are so many tasks to be done if the rest of the 20th Century is to be made livable. We in business need, and society needs, people who can lift the smog from our cities, clean up the streams fouled by an industrialization that has soured rivers while sweetening life; to help unsnarl the traffic of our streets and highways, to help us respond humanely, properly and profitably to the Negro revolution, and - what is also important - to help us keep on building better mousetraps at less cost.....

"Here, then, are the qualities business seeks in the young men and women who move from the campus to the corporate offices:

"A healthy and proper respect for the profit motive and the understanding of the role it plays in the American system.

"An understanding of the needs of modern society.

No, my readers, the time spent in Jefferson City is not near all the time our Senators and Representatives put in on the job.

Must they join a union and go on strike and let "Old Liberality", the federal government, make the laws for Missouri.

Although there have been many lifesaving discoveries in the field of medicine, man has yet to learn what goes on in the minds of many people when they get behind the wheel of an automobile.

"Some of the most likeable people act like madmen as soon as they get into the driver's seat," declared Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol. "Their whole personality seems to change. They believe the highway belongs to them only and they maneuver their vehicles accordingly."

The Patrol Superintendent stated that many people let out their suppressed hostilities toward society when they get behind the wheel. These characteristics make them a hazard on the highway. Included in this group is the egotist, the overemotional driver and the show-off.

The egotist is a psychological misfit in the traffic scene. He has not learned to share the highway with other people. He is a driver who is aggressive, demanding, impatient, and thorougly selfish in his actions affecting other drivers.

Uncontrolled emotions are a sign of immaturity. A baby does not control his emotions, he merely expresses them. The ability to control emotions and to remain calm under pressure should develop as one grows older. Unfortunately, some people don't grow up in this respect. Overemotional drivers are apt to express anger by driving recklessly, flashing their high-beam lights in the eyes of approaching drivers or crowding and forcing others out of trafffic lanes.

The show-off is just plain childish. He wants to call attention to himself. This type of driver, for example, never drives squarely in a line of traffic, but is always nosing out of line a bit, ready for any possible chance to pass the car ahead. The speed of the line of traffic, or the car ahead, has no bearing upon his desire to pass.

"It is important that drivers realize that these types of people do travel the roadways," Colonel Hockaday said. "The best way to protect yourself from these highway hazards is to drive defensively."

A BOW TO THE CREATIVE DESIGNERS

We continue to be impressed by the great strides made by the American designers of men's apparel. With a minimum of fuss-and-feathers and with the maximum of constant dedication to the improvement of U.S. men's wear -- the firms which employ them have risen to financial heights never before achieved in any nation in the world. Foreign countries send trade delegations here to study our creative accomplishments; our fashions are copied in every corner of the globe. And we can credit the designers -- for, without the excellence of the product, it would not be possible to dominate the clothing world, as our giant manufacturers have done.

WAGE-PRICE FREEZE IN GREAT BRITAIN

Last July the Labor Government of Great Britain imposed a mandatory freeze on most wages and prices. It was supposed to be only temporary, perhaps to end in 1966. Now statements by the Labor Government and reports from impartial observers indicate that the wage-price freeze will almost certainly be continued well into 1967 and may last indefinitely.

Unless a country is in the midst of an all-out war for survival which causes great scarcity of civilian goods, a wage-price freeze by government means just one thing: a confession of the total failure and disastrous consequences of government meddling in the economy. It means that government, having tried everything else, has been driven to the last resort of clamping an iron hand on the economy while the bureaucracy struggles to regroup.

It is ironic but appropriate that this crude and restrictive measure, which prevents British workingmen from even hoping for pay increases just as it prevents British businessmen from making any reasonable margin of profit, should come from that loudly self-professed "friend of the workingman," the Labor Party. When the workingman's alleged "friends" clamp a freeze on his wages, he has no need to look any further for his enemies.

There is real danger that before long the United States may follow the road of Great Britain with increased government interference in the economy leading in the end to fixed wages and prices. That is the final result of government's destruction of the free market. To avoid it, we must begin liberating the market from existing controls, instead of adding more. HLH.

The quickest way for a boss to cut down on the number of interoffice romances would be for him to issue an order that all secretaries must show up for work wearing hair curlers.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The congressional punishment of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, the toughest in the last 100 years, has set laudable standards which must be applied to other congressmen, whether white or black.

One committee chairman to whom the standard must be applied is Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., who as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee and a watchdog of the CIA listens to the nation's most sensitive secrets.

Rivers, however, is a security risk. He can be trusted with a secret no longer than it takes him to gulp down a few jiggers of bourbon.

Rivers' flowing white hair and thin, dissipated face might have come from the pages of a William Faulkner novel. He is a charming, likeable person. But he simply cannot hold his liquor. This is a personal tragedy, which might have remained a whisper in Charleston's fashionable drawing rooms except that he has made it a national problem.

For he is briefed not only by Central Intelligence, but by the defense department on the most super - secret matters. Yet, if he weren't a powerful congressman thrust into a key chairmanship by sheer seniority, he couldn't get a security clearance for the most minor job in the Pentagon.

We have tracked down various witnesses regarding Rivers. They range from the blackwater swamps of his native South Carolina to the musty military offices of the Panama Canal; and from Amityville, N.Y., to Houston, Tex. Some are former aides who fear retaliation; others are military officers whose careers would be ruined if they were identified. So we will report the facts without identifying any but pro-Rivers sources.

Most witnesses described the congressman as charming when he's sober, a terror when he's drunk. One military escort, who had to nursemaid him overseas, recalled the experience as "horrendous."

When Rivers sobers up after an alcoholic binge, said a former aide, he "can't remember whom he has seen or what he has said".

"ROARING DRUNK"

"Sometimes we would come into his office and find it strewn with bottles," said a former secretary, "and the safe would be wide open."

One ex - employee remembered receiving a call to pick up the congressman at Washington's posh Mayflower Hotel.

"His shirt was smeared with lipstick, and he was too drunk to know what he was doing," said the employee.

On another occasion, he was brought to the home of an employee to keep him out of trouble.

"He was roaring drunk," was the recollection. "We went to bed but left the bottle on the table and the light was left on so he could get his drinks."

In the morning, he requested an orange, ate it like an animal, peel and all, and spewed it out.

Often the navy would be notified discreetly to send an ambulance to haul the congressman to the Bethesda Naval Hospital to dry out. He was also dropped off on other occasions at Alcoholics Anonymous in the hope they could help.

The armed forces always took the precaution of assigning a military escort with a reputation for sobriety as nursemaid to Rivers on his overseas junkets. One escort insisted that the congressman, who has been able to stay on the wagon for months at a time, behaved like a gentleman.

Others had different recollections. In London, he was found romping through a hotel corridor in his undershorts. In Madrid, he tore the dress of a lady guide. Once he got a few drinks under his belt, he also had a disposition to order generals around like bellhops.

SCOTCH VIA AIR FORCE

After one overseas winding, he alerted aides to meet him at the airport. The air force plane arrived with no congressman but with several cases of scotch he had purchased abroad.

"We were told that the congressman had become ill and hadn't been able to return home," recalled one aide.

Delacey Shuman, the congressman's former administrative assistant, when asked about the congressman's drinking, would say only: "I don't want to discuss his personal affairs. I handled my business, and he handled his."

An air force pilot recalled another time that the air force flew 40 cases of whisky from Bermuda for delivery to the congressman at Charleston.

Rivers' power over military legislation is such that, on at least three occasions, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the secretaries of the three services and other top generals and admirals took time out from the Vietnam war to fly to South Carolina and pay homage to the House Armed Services Chairman.

Recalled an air force officer who in 1965 greeted their plane: "I personally saw Rivers stagger off the plane so drunk he could hardly stand up."

Congress spends hundreds of thousands of dollars each year investigating security risks. Yet it permits an alcholic to preside over the House Armed Services Committee and the CIA watchdog committee, privy to the nation's most vital secrets, which he may blab the next time he gets drunk.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

The House Ways and Means Committee on Wednesday (March 1) begins hearings on President Johnson's proposals on Social Security expansion.

President Johnson is urging on Congress what he calls "the greatest improvement in living standards for the elderly since the Social Security Act was passed in 1935." Implicit is a sweeping change in the whole philosophy of the Social Security system and indeed of the nation's obligations to the aged.

The President's Message on Older Americans which he sent to Congress on Jan. 23 made surprisingly little impact on general news media. It raised a flurry of alarm in the business press, however, and that concern is bound to grow.

What the President wants is a 20 per cent increase in Social Security benefits. He also is asking for reform of tax laws applying to the elderly. He proposes to pay for part of the increases with sharply higher Social Security taxes on employees and employers alike. But even if Congress votes the tax rises, the expansion of the system will mean another giant step away from the concept of the idea of Social Security as insurance and toward welfare government.

To be sure, President Johnson said that our program "must continue on an actuarially sound basis." Every President from Franklin D. Roosevelt on has made much of actuarial soundness. But in fact, a Social Security debt of more than $400 billion exists right now. This sum represents the difference between the present value of future pension rights and the present value of future tax collections at present rates, plus accumulated reserves.

The Johnson proposals would push that debt to $500 billion. Young people, and the more affluent of all ages, eventually would pay the bill.

President Johnson said in considering the needs of the elderly "our goal is not merely to prolong our citizens' lives, but to enrich them." President George P. Meany of the AFL-CIO said that a 20 per cent increase in benefits would constitute "a substantial down-payment on what we firmly believe is the needed 50 per cent rise in benefits."

The Meany statement is a portent of what's to come. The AFL-CIO and its state and local affiliates are prepared to spend thousands of dollars on a mass education and pressure program in the next few months.

Huge rallies are planned for March 12 in Boston, Cleveland, Cincinnait, Chicago, New Orleans, New York, Milwaukee, Denver, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, and Seattle. In St. Louis the rally will be March 10; in Pittsburgh, April 2. Further rallies are planned for Detroit, Oklahoma City, and Daytona Beach, and others in the works.

This is the kind of muscle that Congressmen find hard to resist. And it's pushing in the direction of financing of some Social Security payments out of general revenues.

Why do drivers get lost?

A recent survey of cabbies, transportation firms, truck drivers and the state police disclosed these reasons:

--Inattention, listening to the radio, talking and many other momentary distractions may cause drivers to miss important signs or take the wrong turns.

--Drivers may become confused by too many signs, or by driving in the wrong lane or in an unfamiliar city. Arguments and back-seat driving have caused drivers to lose their way, too.

--Many motorists do not plan thoroughly enough in advance of their trip. They are unaware of route changes or turn-offs. Some don't even bother to carry maps, say perplexed state police.

--In some instances, lost drivers genuinely seem to have a poor sense of direction. After a few turns, they are unable to tell in what direction they are going.

--Speed causes many drivers to miss important directional signs. They whiz by...and end up miles away from their destinations.

How can you avoid getting lost? Try these tips:

.Plan your trip well in advance. Look at maps, study the route and stay on the one you choose. Know where you are going and when to expect the turn-offs leading to your destination. Equip your car with a compass to check your sense of direction.

.Watch those signs. Fewer drivers would get lost, say state police, if they paid more attention to the large green directional signs used on most major routes today. These signs, coated with materials that reflect sign messages in headlight brilliance, can be seen at greater distances, even at night.

.Slow down for congested areas, intersections, cloverleafs and turn-offs. This gives you time to make the correct turn or get into the proper lane. Such precaution also lessens the chance of an accident.

.When visiting friends in a strange city, phone ahead and ask for directions to their home. This may save wasted time and hot tempers. Cabbies say you should always carry the street guide for a strange city.

.Carry maps of your route on the trip. Consult them when necessary to keep yourself on course.

.If you do get lost, stop and inquire. Call the local police or fire station for information. Listen carefully to the advice and you should be back on the road - headed in the right direction - with a minimum of delay.

To college students in Portland, Ore., John D. Gray, president of Omark Industries recently said, in part:

"...American business needs the today's young intellectual. There are so many tasks to be done if the rest of the 20th Century is to be made livable. We in business need, and society needs, people who can lift the smog from our cities, clean up the streams fouled by an industrialization that has soured rivers while sweetening life; to help unsnarl the traffic of our streets and highways, to help us respond humanely, properly and profitably to the Negro revolution, and - what is also important - to help us keep on building better mousetraps at less cost.....

"Here, then, are the qualities business seeks in the young men and women who move from the campus to the corporate offices:

"A healthy and proper respect for the profit motive and the understanding of the role it plays in the American system.

"An understanding of the needs of modern society.

MAYBE THEY SHOULD JOIN A UNION

We hear some criticism of the members of the legislature over their attempt to raise their salaries enought to compensate them for the time spent in Jefferson City.

And the time they are at home when their constituents call them day after day and night after night.

Bending their ear with all of the legislation they would like to see enacted or

About all the legislation they think is bad and should be defeated.

No, my readers, the time spent in Jefferson City is not near all the time our Senators and Representatives put in on the job.

We do not hesitate to let the unions take us to the cleaners with their wage demands. Why not write to your Senator or Representative today and encourage them to support the raise.

Must they join a union and go on strike and let "Old Liberality", the federal government, make the laws for Missouri.

Think it over. They are the operators of an over a billion dollar a year business.

Would you want the reliefers handling your State's business.

Although there have been many lifesaving discoveries in the field of medicine, man has yet to learn what goes on in the minds of many people when they get behind the wheel of an automobile.

"Some of the most likeable people act like madmen as soon as they get into the driver's seat," declared Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol. "Their whole personality seems to change. They believe the highway belongs to them only and they maneuver their vehicles accordingly."

The Patrol Superintendent stated that many people let out their suppressed hostilities toward society when they get behind the wheel. These characteristics make them a hazard on the highway. Included in this group is the egotist, the overemotional driver and the show-off.

The egotist is a psychological misfit in the traffic scene. He has not learned to share the highway with other people. He is a driver who is aggressive, demanding, impatient, and thorougly selfish in his actions affecting other drivers.

Uncontrolled emotions are a sign of immaturity. A baby does not control his emotions, he merely expresses them. The ability to control emotions and to remain calm under pressure should develop as one grows older. Unfortunately, some people don't grow up in this respect. Overemotional drivers are apt to express anger by driving recklessly, flashing their high-beam lights in the eyes of approaching drivers or crowding and forcing others out of traffic lanes.

The show-off is just plain childish. He wants to call attention to himself. This type of driver, for example, never drives squarely in a line of traffic, but is always nosing out of line a bit, ready for any possible chance to pass the car ahead. The speed of the line of traffic, or the car ahead, has no bearing upon his desire to pass.

"It is important that drivers realize that these types of people do travel the roadways," Colonel Hockaday said. "The best way to protect yourself from these highway hazards is to drive defensively."

A BOW TO THE CREATIVE DESIGNERS

We continue to be impressed by the great strides made by the American designers of men's apparel. With a minimum of fuss-and-feathers and with the maximum of constant dedication to the improvement of U.S. men's wear -- the firms which employ them have risen to financial heights never before achieved in any nation in the world. Foreign countries send trade delegations here to study our creative accomplishments; our fashions are copied in every corner of the globe. And we can credit the designers -- for, without the excellence of the product, it would not be possible to dominate the clothing world, as our giant manufacturers have done.

WAGE-PRICE FREEZE IN GREAT BRITAIN

Last July the Labor Government of Great Britain imposed a mandatory freeze on most wages and prices. It was supposed to be only temporary, perhaps to end in 1966. Now statements by the Labor Government and reports from impartial observers indicate that the wage-price freeze will almost certainly be continued well into 1967 and may last indefinitely.

Unless a country is in the midst of an all-out war for survival which causes great scarcity of civilian goods, a wage-price freeze by government means just one thing: a confession of the total failure and disastrous consequences of government meddling in the economy. It means that government, having tried everything else, has been driven to the last resort of clamping an iron hand on the economy while the bureaucracy struggles to regroup.

It is ironic but appropriate that this crude and restrictive measure, which prevents British workingmen from even hoping for pay increases just as it prevents British businessmen from making any reasonable margin of profit, should come from that loudly self-professed "friend of the workingman," the Labor Party. When the workingman's alleged "friends" clamp a freeze on his wages, he has no need to look any further for his enemies.

There is real danger that before long the United States may follow the road of Great Britain with increased government interference in the economy leading in the end to fixed wages and prices. That is the final result of government's destruction of the free market. To avoid it, we must begin liberating the market from existing controls, instead of adding more. HLH.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON -- The congressional punishment of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, the toughest in the last 100 years, has set laudable standards which must be applied to other congressmen, whether white or black.

One committee chairman to whom the standard must be applied is Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., who as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee and a watchdog of the CIA listens to the nation's most sensitive secrets.

Rivers, however, is a security risk. He can be trusted with a secret no longer than it takes him to gulp down a few jiggers of bourbon.

Rivers' flowing white hair and thin, dissipated face might have come from the pages of a William Faulkner novel. He is a charming, likeable person. But he simply cannot hold his liquor. This is a personal tragedy, which might have remained a whisper in Charleston's fashionable drawing rooms except that he has made it a national problem.

For he is briefed not only by Central Intelligence, but by the defense department on the most super-secret matters. Yet, if he weren't a powerful congressman thrust into a key chairmanship by sheer seniority, he couldn't get a security clearance for the most minor job in the Pentagon.

We have tracked down various witnesses regarding Rivers. They range from the blackwater swamps of his native South Carolina to the musty military offices of the Panama Canal; and from Amityville, N.Y., to Houston, Tex. Some are former aides who fear retaliation; others are military officers whose careers would be ruined if they were identified. So we will report the facts without identifying any but pro-Rivers sources.

Most witnesses described the congressman as charming when he's sober, a terror when he's drunk. One military escort, who had to nursemaid him overseas, recalled the experience as "horrendous."

When Rivers sobers up after an alcoholic binge, said a former aide, he "can't remember whom he has seen or what he has said".

"ROARING DRUNK"

"Sometimes we would come into his office and find it strewn with bottles," said a former secretary, "and the safe would be wide open."

One ex-employee remembered receiving a call to pick up the congressman at Washington's posh Mayflower Hotel.

"His shirt was smeared with lipstick, and he was too drunk to know what he was doing," said the employee.

On another occasion, he was brought to the home of an employee to keep him out of trouble.

"He was roaring drunk," was the recollection. "We went to bed but left the bottle on the table and the light was left on so he could get his drinks."

In the morning, he requested an orange, ate it like an animal, peel and all, and spewed it out.

Often the navy would be notified discreetly to send an ambulance to haul the congressman to the Bethesda Naval Hospital to dry out. He was also dropped off on other occasions at Alcoholics Anonymous in the hope they could help.

The armed forces always took the precaution of assigning a military escort with a reputation for sobriety as nursemaid to Rivers on his overseas junkets. One escort insisted that the congressman, who has been able to stay on the wagon for months at a time, behaved like a gentleman.

Others had different recollections. In London, he was found romping through a hotel corridor in his undershorts. In Madrid, he tore the dress of a lady guide. Once he got a few drinks under his belt, he also had a disposition to order generals around like bellhops.

SCOTCH VIA AIR FORCE

After one overseas winding, he alerted aides to meet him at the airport. The air force plane arrived with no congressman but with several cases of scotch he had purchased abroad.

"We were told that the congressman had become ill and hadn't been able to return home," recalled one aide.

Delacey Shuman, the congressman's former administrative assistant, when asked about the congressman's drinking, would say only: "I don't want to discuss his personal affairs. I handled my business, and he handled his."

An air force pilot recalled another time that the air force flew 40 cases of whisky from Bermuda for delivery to the congressman at Charleston.

Rivers' power over military legislation is such that, on at least three occasions, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the secretaries of the three services and other top generals and admirals took time out from the Vietnam war to fly to South Carolina and pay homage to the House Armed Services Chairman.

Recalled an air force officer who in 1965 greeted their plane: "I personally saw Rivers stagger off the plane so drunk he could hardly stand up."

Congress spends hundreds of thousands of dollars each year investigating security risks. Yet it permits an alcholic to preside over the House Armed Services Committee and the CIA watchdog committee, privy to the nation's most vital secrets, which he may blab the next time he gets drunk.

Charleston and Sikeston Open L Action With Wins

POPLAR BLUFF -- Charleston and Sikeston opened first round action of the class L regional basketball tournament in Southeast Missouri last night with victories. Charleston edged Cape Girardeau Central 66-59 in overtime and Sikeston crashed Caruthersville's defense 79-51.

First round action will be completed tonight as Perryville goes against second-seeded Poplar Bluff at 7 p.m. Jackson and Kennett battle at 8:30 p.m.

Charleston had to fight to add its 16th consecutive victory and notch its 21st of the season. Scrappy Cape Central led for most of four periods. Cape couldn't connect on free throws in the closing seconds and allowed the game to be tied, after which the Blue Jays sailed to victory.

Larry Briggs again proved to be the man of seconds. He swished in a 25-foot jumper with five seconds remaining on the clock for a 59-59 tie.

Briggs, who has connected on two other such shots in the closing seconds of a game, gave his team that added lift and momentum that led it to an overtime victory.

Cape jumped out in the first period with a two-point lead, 19-17, and added three more points to it by outscoring Charleston in the second period 15-12.

Charleston came out in the third period, netted 17 points and held Cape to 11 for a 56-45 lead, but quickly lost it as the final period opened.

Central had numerous opportunities in the final period to ice the game but failed.

With the score deadlocked at 57-57, Cape's Johnson was at the line with two free throws. He netted them. Charleston raced down floor and missed a shot.

Johnson of Cape went to the foul line again, this time with 20 seconds remaining. He was given one and one situation, where if a player makes his first shot he gets another chance for two. He missed his first, grabbed the rebound and was fouled again but missed the shot.

Briggs followed with his 25-foot jumper which tied the score with five seconds to go.

In overtime Brown hit the first Charleston basket and Betts followed with two free throws. Babb added a free pitch and Briggs hit a 20-footer as the horn sounded. Cape went scoreless in the overtime period.

BALANCED SCORING FOR DOGS

Four of the Sikeston quintet's starters hit in double figures. They stumbled from a 15-14 first quarter lead into a 36-26 halftime lead and never let up.

Lester Carter swished 22 points through the nets for the Bulldogs and Limbaugh and Towns added 15 each and Gary Wiss pumped in 13.

The Bulldogs scored 33 field goals and added 13 free pitches in adding up their 79-point total.

The game was close in the first period but the Dogs of Coach N. P. McDaniel fought with a deadly press in the second period to take a half time lead and notched 43 points in the second half while holding Caruthersville's Tigers to 25, six in the third period.

Carl Barnet, the other Bulldog starter, netted seven points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

Jim Prather topped Caruthersville with 16 points.

Charleston and Sikeston, arch-rivals, will battle Wednesday night in a semi-final round game.

Bloomfield's Season Ends In First Round Game Of State Class M Tournament

BLOOMFIELD - The Contributions of Andy Bullinger to the Bloomfield Wildcats were apparent last night as Hayti North defeated the Wildcats in a first round game of the state class M basketball tournament, 50-49, in overtime.

Bloomfield's Bullinger was missed in three departments, rebound, scoring and as a leader against the press.

Hayti North stayed within striking range of the Wildcats and finally stuck the Cats with an Indian press that startled the Wildcats. Hayti moved ahead with two quick baskets in the final three minutes of the fourth quarter.

Bloomfield held a 21-19 lead at intermission after posting a 11-10 first quarter lead.

Hayti struggled to stay within three points at the end of the third period after Bloomfield shot into a five-point lead midway in the period but passed up many chances to add to it.

Hayti came storming back in the fourth period when it netted 20 points and held Bloomfield to 15 until, with three second to go, Bloomfield's Wayne Corse hit a 30-foot jumper for a 56-56 tie.

Without the services of the Cats leading rebounder in overtime, Terry Chasteen, who fouled out with eight seconds remaining in the final quarter, fell in the extra three minutes.

Hayti used its press and fast break in the last 11 minutes hitting layin after layin against the Wildcats' press.

Bloomfield fell one shot short in overtime. Doyle Swindle tried a 40-foot shot that fell short as the horn sounded.

Hayti had chances in the final three minutes of the overtime to ice the game but Ben Johnson missed on two one and one chances after hitting the first shot of one. Bloomfield passed up a layin and committed a three-second violation to give the game to Hayti.

Ben Johnson was the Indians' big gun as he has been all season. He dumped in 17 points and hauled in 18 rebounds. Ben Watkins was the man of the minute in overtime. He hit a layin and picked off a Wildcat pass.

Doyle Swindle tied Johnson for high game honors. He hit 17 points in leading the Wildcats' scoring attack.

Hayti North will meet Notre Dame at Cape Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m. in a quarterfinal round game. The winner will advance to the tournament semi-finals at Lexington Friday.

Charleston and Sikeston Open L Action With Wins

POPLAR BLUFF -- Charleston and Sikeston opened first round action of the class L regional basketball tournament in Southeast Missouri last night with victories. Charleston edged Cape Girardeau Central 66-59 in overtime and Sikeston crashed Caruthersville's defense 79-51.

First round action will be completed tonight as Perryville goes against second-seeded Poplar Bluff at 7 p.m. Jackson and Kennett battle at 8:30 p.m.

Charleston had to fight to add its 16th consecutive victory and notch its 21st of the season. Scrappy Cape Central led for most of four periods. Cape couldn't connect on free throws in the closing seconds and allowed the game to be tied, after which the Blue Jays sailed to victory.

Larry Briggs again proved to be the man of seconds. He swished in a 25-foot jumper with five seconds remaining on the clock for a 59-59 tie.

Briggs, who has connected on two other such shots in the closing seconds of a game, gave his team that added lift and momentum that led it to an overtime victory.

Cape jumped out in the first period with a two-point lead, 19-17, and added three more points to it by outscoring Charleston in the second period 15-12.

Charleston came out in the third period, netted 17 points and held Cape to 11 for a 56-45 lead, but quickly lost it as the final period opened.

Central had numerous opportunities in the final period to ice the game but failed.

With the score deadlocked at 57-57, Cape's Johnson was at the line with two free throws. He netted them. Charleston raced down floor and missed a shot.

Johnson of Cape went to the foul line again, this time with 20 seconds remaining. He was given one and one situation, where if a player makes his first shot he gets another chance for two. He missed his first, grabbed the rebound and was fouled again but missed the shot.

Briggs followed with his 25-foot jumper which tied the score with five seconds to go.

In overtime Brown hit the first Charleston basket and Betts followed with two free throws. Babb added a free pitch and Briggs hit a 20-footer as the horn sounded. Cape went scoreless in the overtime period.

BALANCED SCORING FOR DOGS

Four of the Sikeston quintet's starters hit in double figures. They stumbled from a 15-14 first quarter lead into a 36-26 halftime lead and never let up.

Lester Carter swished 22 points through the nets for the Bulldogs and Limbaugh and Towns added 15 each and Gary Wiss pumped in 13.

The Bulldogs scored 33 field goals and added 13 free pitches in adding up their 79-point total.

The game was close in the first period but the Dogs of Coach N. P. McDaniel fought with a deadly press in the second period to take a half time lead and notched 43 points in the second half while holding Caruthersville's Tigers to 25, six in the third period.

Carl Barnet, the other Bulldog starter, netted seven points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

Jim Prather topped Caruthersville with 16 points.

Charleston and Sikeston, arch-rivals, will battle Wednesday night in a semi-final round game.

Bloomfield's Season Ends In First Round Game Of State Class M Tournament

BLOOMFIELD - The Contributions of Andy Bullinger to the Bloomfield Wildcats were apparent last night as Hayti North defeated the Wildcats in a first round game of the state class M basketball tournament, 50-49, in overtime.

Bloomfield's Bullinger was missed in three departments, rebound, scoring and as a leader against the press.

Hayti North stayed within striking range of the Wildcats and finally stuck the Cats with an Indian press that startled the Wildcats. Hayti moved ahead with two quick baskets in the final three minutes of the fourth quarter.

Bloomfield held a 21-19 lead at intermission after posting a 11-10 first quarter lead.

Hayti struggled to stay within three points at the end of the third period after Bloomfield shot into a five-point lead midway in the period but passed up many chances to add to it.

Hayti came storming back in the fourth period when it netted 20 points and held Bloomfield to 15 until, with three second to go, Bloomfield's Wayne Corse hit a 30-foot jumper for a 56-56 tie.

Without the services of the Cats leading rebounder in overtime, Terry Chasteen, who fouled out with eight seconds remaining in the final quarter, fell in the extra three minutes.

Hayti used its press and fast break in the last 11 minutes hitting layin after layin against the Wildcats' press.

Bloomfield fell one shot short in overtime. Doyle Swindle tried a 40-foot shot that fell short as the horn sounded.

Hayti had chances in the final three minutes of the overtime to ice the game but Ben Johnson missed on two one and one chances after hitting the first shot of one. Bloomfield passed up a layin and committed a three-second violation to give the game to Hayti.

Ben Johnson was the Indians' big gun as he has been all season. He dumped in 17 points and hauled in 18 rebounds. Ben Watkins was the man of the minute in overtime. He hit a layin and picked off a Wildcat pass.

Doyle Swindle tied Johnson for high game honors. He hit 17 points in leading the Wildcats' scoring attack.

Hayti North will meet Notre Dame at Cape Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m. in a quarterfinal round game. The winner will advance to the tournament semi-finals at Lexington Friday.

Blows Fly at OEO Session

HAYTI -- Blows were struck and one man was hit over the head with a chair at a blistering meeting of the Semo Economic Opportunities Corp., administrator of the poverty program in Pemiscot County, here Tuesday night.

Sheriff Clyde Orion and Jerry Bain engaged in a brief fist fight before others in a crowd of 35 to 40 persons separated them.

Witnesses said while Mr. Bain was being held he was struck over the head with a folding chair wielded by Byars Orton, brother of the sheriff, and a former associate judge on the Pemiscot County Court.

Apparently none of the participants was injured in the eruption.

The fight broke out after a new board of directors had been elected and had gone into a closed session in another room.

Seeds were evidently sown, however, during a meeting at which new directors were nominated and chosen.

Witnesses said words were exchanged between Mr. Bain and Coy Wilson of Wardell over Mr. Bain's recent resignation as paid director of one of the Hayti centers of the poverty program.

Mr. Bain had served on the board of directors with his father, Leroy Bain, mayor of Hayti, and had resigned from this post to take the paid position, a board member reported.

Subsequent to this, it was ruled Jerry Bain could not hold the paid position because his father was serving on the board which control's the county poverty program. As a result of this, he resigned within the past month.

After Mr. Bain and Mr. Wilson exchanged words, witnesses said, the sheriff entered the dispute and the fight ensued. Mr. Bain is in his early 30's and the sheriff is in his mid-40's.

The dispute is evidently a part of a power struggle between factions in the poverty program. It is expected, those concerned said, that directions will be asked the regional office in Kansas City in view of Thursday night's developments.

The meeting was called to elect 12 members to a 24-member board. Twelve members had previously been chosen, three from each of four centers -- Wardell-Hayward, Hayti-Deering, Steele and Caruthersville. Until the new board was completed, it was explained, the original 24-member body continued in office. This group ruled that the 12 already elected would choose the remaining 12.

Nominations of three men from Caruthersville were made by the Caruthersville group. This was countered by nominations of three Caruthersville men by Neeley Mitchell of Hayti. Other nominations were made by the remaining centers.

The 12 members previously chosen by the centers voted by secret ballot on the nominations. These votes were taken in the open session and not at the closed meeting.

Serving as temporary chairman during the meeting was Tommy German, mayor of Steele and full-time deputy sheriff under Sheriff Orton.

Those elected from Caruthersville were those put in nomination by Mr. Mitchell. Opponents charged that they were actually the selections of Sheriff Orton.

During these developments, most of the delegation walked out. They were not present when the fight took place.

The Caruthersville group said the three elected had not shown any previous interest in the poverty program. They said also that the Thursday night meeting was the first attended by Sheriff Orton.

The dispute is the second to break out in southeast Missouri over the povery program.

Earlier in the Delta Area Economic Opportunities Corp., an election dispute broke out when J.V. Conran, New Madrid County political leader, took over as presiding officer at a meeting.

Decisions made at that time were later ruled invalid by the Kansas City Regional Office of OEO.

Long Tells of Privacy Threat

BOSTON -- U.S. Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Missouri) today warned that private police forces hired by political leaders are "an extremely serious threat to the citizen's right of privacy."

Senator Long was speaking to students and faculty members of Babson Institute, Babson Park, Massachusetts.

"Private police forces can easily violate laws, crush privacy, create fear and mistrust among the people," Senator Long said.

Long said "The citizen has no control, no say-so in the creation or operation of the force. The force has no sense of responsibility to the citizen's rights."

Senator Long warned that private police forces "will serve only to undermine legitimate local law enforcement agencies."

"The biggest need in crime prevention today is better equipped and better trained local forces. What we do not want is a free-wheeling political police force playing havoc with our democratic system," Senator Long said.

Private police forces are like "the Gestapo and the secret police," Senator Long said. "They owe their allegiance to an official, not to the people. They are not even paid by the people, but by private funds."

Senator Long is Chairman of the Senate Subcommittee investigating wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping activities in the United States.

Author of a new book, The Intruders, he said "I wrote my book to alert the American people to the tremendous danger of apathy about privacy. We are not secure in our privacy today," he said.

The Missouri Senator is also chief sponsor of a bill in the Senate to outlaw all wiretapping and eavesdropping by government and private agents. At Babson Institute today, Senator Long said "I hope we can get right of privacy legislation through the Congress this year."

"Large firms are wiretapping and snooping on each other and on labor unions. The bugging business is big money. An expert can earn over six hundred dollars just to place one bug. The losses to the victim often soar into the millions," Long said.

Vacation Safety In Your Car

DRIVING THE INTERSTATES

Approximately half the 41,000-mile, coast-to-coast, interstate highway system awaits this summer's tourists. As more miles of the interstate system open for travel each year, vacation driving becomes safer. Statistics prove it: On ordinary highways, the fatality rate per 100 million vehicle miles is 9.7. But, on the interstate and other interstate-type highways, it is 3.5 deaths per million vehicle miles.

Anyone, such as a vacationer, who drives the interstates and interstate-type highways must adapt to driving conditions that differ dramatically from conditions on other highways. Here are some suggestions for interstate driving:

-- Entry. In most cases, you will enter the interstate from a long acceleration lane. Don't stop in this lane. Instead, judge the speed of the traffic streaming past you, pick a gap, then accelerate to a speed that permits you to merge with the traffic.

Fatigue and Monotony. Drivers tend to become bored and drowsy after driving into the hazy distance for hours, to the accompaniment of motor hum and the click-clack of wheels over pavement joints.

So, don't drive for more than eight hours in one day. Stop for 10-minute breaks every two hours or so. Drink plenty of water, orange juice, or lemonade. Eat lightly. If you become drowsy, change your posture and open outside air vents. Talk or sing. Turn the radio to LOUD! Vary your speed with short intervals of faster and slower driving.

--Exit. Know the name and the route number of your exit . . . and the one before it. Start looking well before you expect to see them, so you'll have plenty of time to ease into the right-hand lane.

If you see the exit looming up just ahead while you're still in an inside lane, drive past it rather than risk a high-speed collision by slowing suddenly or changing lanes abruptly.

Once you're exiting on the deceleration lane, slow down more than you think necessary if the speed limit isn't posted. Miles of interstate driving at consistently high speed can cause you to seriously misjudge your speed.

-- The Car. Make sure your car is ready for those long stretches of high-speed interstate system driving. Inspect the tires and fan belt -- two common ingredients in expressway breakdowns -- and fill the radiator.

You'll hate yourself if you don't fill your gas tank, too, before entering the interstate system. Service stations are located only at exits on most sections of the interstate, so don't count on conveniently located service areas between exits.

Vacation Safety In Your Car

DRIVING THE INTERSTATES

Approximately half the 41,000 - mile, coast - to - coast, interstate highway system awaits this summer's tourists. As more miles of the interstate system open for travel each year, vacation driving becomes safer. Statistics prove it: On ordinary highways, the fatality rate per 100 million vehicle miles is 9.7. But, on the interstate and other interstate - type highways, it is 3.5 deaths per million vehicle miles.

Anyone, such as a vacationer, who drives the interstates and interstate - type highways must adapt to driving conditions that differ dramatically from conditions on other highways. Here are some suggestions for interstate driving:

-- Entry. In most cases, you will enter the interstate from a long acceleration lane. Don't stop in this lane. Instead, judge the speed of the traffic streaming past you, pick a gap, then accelerate to a speed that permits you to merge with the traffic.

Fatigue and Monotony. Drivers tend to become bored and drowsy after driving into the hazy distance for hours, to the accompaniment of motor hum and the click - clack of wheels over pavement joints.

So, don't drive for more than eight hours in one day. Stop for 10 - minute breaks every two hours or so. Drink plenty of water, orange juice, or lemonade. Eat lightly. If you become drowsy, change your posture and open outside air vents. Talk or sing. Turn the radio to LOUD! Vary your speed with short intervals of faster and slower driving.

--Exit. Know the name and the route number of your exit . . . and the one before it. Start looking well before you expect to see them, so you'll have plenty of time to ease into the right - hand lane.

If you see the exit looming up just ahead while you're still in an inside lane, drive past it rather than risk a high-speed collision by slowing suddenly or changing lanes abruptly.

Once you're exiting on the deceleration lane, slow down more than you think necessary if the speed limit isn't posted. Miles of interstate driving at consistently high speed can cause you to seriously misjudge your speed.

-- The Car. Make sure your car is ready for those long stretches of high- speed interstate system driving. Inspect the tires and fan belt -- two common ingredients in expressway breakdowns -- and fill the radiator.

You'll hate yourself if you don't fill your gas tank, too, before entering the interstate system. Service stations are located only at exits on most sections of the interstate, so don't count on conveniently located service areas between exits.

Blows Fly at OEO Session

HAYTI -- Blows were struck and one man was hit over the head with a chair at a blistering meeting of the Semo Economic Opportunities Corp., administrator of the poverty program in Pemiscot County, here Tuesday night.

Sheriff Clyde Orion and Jerry Bain engaged in a brief fist fight before others in a crowd of 35 to 40 persons separated them.

Witnesses said while Mr. Bain was being held he was struck over the head with a folding chair wielded by Byars Orton, brother of the sheriff, and a former associate judge on the Pemiscot County Court.

Apparently none of the participants was injured in the eruption.

The fight broke out after a new board of directors had been elected and had gone into a closed session in another room.

Seeds were evidently sown, however, during a meeting at which new directors were nominated and chosen.

Witnesses said words were exchanged between Mr. Bain and Coy Wilson of Wardell over Mr. Bain's recent resignation as paid director of one of the Hayti centers of the poverty program.

Mr. Bain had served on the board of directors with his father, Leroy Bain, mayor of Hayti, and had resigned from this post to take the paid position, a board member reported.

Subsequent to this, it was ruled Jerry Bain could not hold the paid position because his father was serving on the board which control's the county poverty program. As a result of this, he resigned within the past month.

After Mr. Bain and Mr. Wilson exchanged words, witnesses said, the sheriff entered the dispute and the fight ensued. Mr. Bain is in his early 30's and the sheriff is in his mid-40's.

The dispute is evidently a part of a power struggle between factions in the poverty program. It is expected, those concerned said, that directions will be asked the regional office in Kansas City in view of Thursday night's developments.

The meeting was called to elect 12 members to a 24-member board. Twelve members had previously been chosen, three from each of four centers -- Wardell-Hayward, Hayti-Deering, Steele and Caruthersville.

Until the new board was completed, it was explained, the original 24-member body continued in office. This group ruled that the 12 already elected would choose the remaining 12.

Nominations of three men from Caruthersville were made by the Caruthersville group. This was countered by nominations of three Caruthersville men by Neeley Mitchell of Hayti. Other nominations were made by the remaining centers.

The 12 members previously chosen by the centers voted by secret ballot on the nominations. These votes were taken in the open session and not at the closed meeting.

Serving as temporary chairman during the meeting was Tommy German, mayor of Steele and full-time deputy sheriff under Sheriff Orton.

Those elected from Caruthersville were those put in nomination by Mr. Mitchell. Opponents charged that they were actually the selections of Sheriff Orton.

During these developments, most of the delegation walked out. They were not present when the fight took place.

The Caruthersville group said the three elected had not shown any previous interest in the poverty program. They said also that the Thursday night meeting was the first attended by Sheriff Orton.

The dispute is the second to break out in southeast Missouri over the povery program.

Earlier in the Delta Area Economic Opportunities Corp., an election dispute broke out when J.V. Conran, New Madrid County political leader, took over as presiding officer at a meeting.

Decisions made at that time were later ruled invalid by the Kansas City Regional Office of OEO.

Long Tells of Privacy Threat

BOSTON -- U.S. Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Missouri) today warned that private police forces hired by political leaders are "an extremely serious threat to the citizen's right of privacy."

Senator Long was speaking to students and faculty members of Babson Institute, Babson Park, Massachusetts.

"Private police forces can easily violate laws, crush privacy, create fear and mistrust among the people," Senator Long said.

Long said "The citizen has no control, no say-so in the creation or operation of the force. The force has no sense of responsibility to the citizen's rights."

Senator Long warned that private police forces "will serve only to undermine legitimate local law enforcement agencies."

"The biggest need in crime prevention today is better equipped and better trained local forces. What we do not want is a free-wheeling political police force playing havoc with our democratic system," Senator Long said.

Private police forces are like "the Gestapo and the secret police," Senator Long said. "They owe their allegiance to an official, not to the people. They are not even paid by the people, but by private funds."

Senator Long is Chairman of the Senate Subcommittee investigating wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping activities in the United States.

Author of a new book, The Intruders, he said "I wrote my book to alert the American people to the tremendous danger of apathy about privacy. We are not secure in our privacy today," he said.

The Missouri Senator is also chief sponsor of a bill in the Senate to outlaw all wiretapping and eavesdropping by government and private agents. At Babson Institute today, Senator Long said "I hope we can get right of privacy legislation through the Congress this year."

"Large firms are wiretapping and snooping on each other and on labor unions. The bugging business is big money. An expert can earn over six hundred dollars just to place one bug. The losses to the victim often soar into the millions," Long said.

Dear Ron:

What's wrong, did I help to tear down your play house?

In the first place I did not condemn the entire Senior Class only those who took part in the incident and I didn't condemn them any more than I did the parents if they knew about it for not putting a stop to it.

I know school officials can only go so far if they don't have the cooperation of the parents. No, it sure was not a cry of indignation. I gave it very careful thought that if I could say something that would put a stop to something that could turn into a tragedy and you kids would be sorry for the rest of your lives. Also to help some of the parents feel their deep responsibility. It will be worth any criticism or embarrassment that I might get.

As for the tradition, it's a very bad one. If you are ashamed for people to know about it why not carry on a tradition that both you and your school can be proud of.

And I don't wish war or death on anyone, but I do say if your parents or the school officials neither one can control you and stop you from doing things like that you need to be over there where just maybe you would learn that you have responsibilities to others as well as yourself, instead of trying to ignore the very thing our boys are fighting for - the rights and privileges of others.

And the narcotic report - it's not the first time it's been reported in our schools. About 4 or 5 years ago there was quite a stir about it being in school and there is no limit I wouldn't go as I know a lot of others would, to keep our boys and girls from coming in contact with that.

I have had several mothers to call me about the letter and they have boys in high school and they are behind me one hundred percent. Now maybe it will stop.

I know kids do things sometimes without thinking about the harm it could cause but now you know so don't do it anymore, and for goodness sake, get a better tradition please.

It's every citizen's duty to keep our schools and our town clean and something to be proud of and the way to keep it that way is to put a stop to things like that before it gets out of control and leads to worse things.

Come out and talk to me personally. I would like nothing better.

Let me congratulate you on your 12th Annual Progress Edition. It is an issue any newspaper could be justly proud of.

Dear Charlie:

You have had some mighty fine Annual Progress Editions in the past, but I think the one this year beats them all.

You'll probably try to make some improvements next year, but I cannot find anything you could possibly improve on.

Thanks for your splendid issue of the Standard. How in the world did you ever get the time to work up something like that? I'm going to keep it as a sample for the time, if it ever comes, when we put out a special.

By the way, are you going to the Washington Study Mission March 8-11? You should make it. We're going, and would enjoy seeing you there.

Good Morning Charlie:

You made an otherwise gloomy, overcast day in Columbia look a lot brighter today when I received the Standard's 12th Annual Progress Edition. Marilyn and I save it and read it by pieces, catching up on all the news and fine things that have happened in Sikeston since our last visit.

I certainly hope all your readers see the Progress Edition as a representation of the growth your city has experienced in the past year and realize the tremendous potential Sikeston has to become the capital of the Bootheel. I think also your readers should take note of the merchants, firms and businessmen who have advertised in the progress edition because they're the ones who have made Sikeston's growth possible. The people interested in making Sikeston a good place to live are those who take the time and money to tell their neighbors about Sikeston through their progress reports and advertising.

Sikeston certainly has a lot to be proud about. Maybe your readers will want to buy extra copies of the Progress Edition to send to friends and business associates to show what a wonderful town they live in.

Thanks for sending the newspaper. I'm just about ready to pack up and move down because of it.

Highlights and Sidelights

HOUSE CONSIDERS "DUAL ENROLLMENT" BILL

JEFFERSON CITY -- Amid many of the emotional arguments against the proposed "shared time" bill under consideration in the House of Representatives, more thought is being given to the lucid presentation for the bill given to the House education committee by Paul E. Williams, legal assistant to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

The bill recently was approved by the House education committee and is now being considered on the floor of the House. House passage is expected but more opposition is foreseen in the Senate.

In a seven - page statement Williams pointed out that the question whether the bill would violate constitutional prohibitions against aid to religion has been thoughtfully considered by legal authorities in several states -- none of whom hold that a dual attendance program violates the constitutional prohibition against aid to religion.

Williams warned the committee against referring to the bill as a "shared time" or "dual enrollment" proposal. "We should look to what the bill does, and not to what it is called," he said.

The bill, he said, "would permit children to attend more than one school during the regular schooltime. This would not apply to all school programs but would be limited to only two types -- special education for the mentally and physically handicapped children, and programs for economically and educationally deprived children financed by the United States under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965."

"Some handicaps," he explained, "permit the child to remain in the normal school curriculum most of the time, special instruction being required only part time. A typical example of such a handicap would be the need for speech correction, or training of the partially deaf or blind."

"Educationally deprived children" are those who, because of poverty, handicap, inferior schools and the like, have not made normal advancement.

The federal funds are only granted for use in a school concentration of low - income families. The funds may not be used to merely supplant existing programs, but must be used to finance new or supplemental programs, he said.

Frequently this money is used for remedial programs in the basic skills, "the old three Rs -- reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic," Williams explained.

In addition, under the Federal act, if the program does not provide for participation of children attending private schools, then no federal funds will be granted for the benefit of any children.

Present state law prohibits conducting a program during regular schooltime which includes children enrolled in non - public schools. To meet federal requirements of comparable opportunity to private pupils, public school districts must conduct these federal programs during the evening, on Saturday and during the summer.

However, school authorities have reported that pupils in such programs make considerably lower gains than pupils who attend programs during normal school hours.

A 1964 survey, Williams said, was conducted by the National Education Assn. and reported that dual attendance programs were then operated in 36 states and that an additional five states were contemplating establishing such programs.

Two state courts -- Pennsylvania and Illinois -- have upheld the constitutionality of dual attendance, and the United States Supreme Court, almost 10 years ago, also upheld the constitutionality of a dual attendance practice, Williams said.

He concluded by noting that the terms "public school pupil" and "private school pupil" only denote where the child is presently in school. The same child may be both a public and a private school pupil -- the child is the same -- and he does not alter his citizenship by attending a private school, he added.

BILL WOULD END TAX ON PERSONAL PROPERTY

Long criticized as being unfair to all citizens, the personal property tax in Missouri may be abolished in this session of the Legislature.

Rep. Walter L. Meyer (D-St. Louis) has proposed a constitutional amendment which would allow the voters to register their opinion on whether to retain or abolish the tax.

Meyer explained that his House Joint Resolution was permissive legislation -- that is, first the voters would have to give authority to the Legislature to abolish the tax through the constitutional amendment, and then the General Assembly would have to pass a bill in another session which would effectively put it to an end.

Thus, he said, the change would not be so radical or quick to give people second doubts -- they would have a chance to express their opinion first, and the tax would not be abolished for at least another two years.

Meyer said there has been much inequity in the enforcement of the personal property tax and that in the metropolitan areas, it is practically impossible to enforce.

"Most people do not realize," he said, "that they are violating the law when they fail to report items such as suits, a mint coat, kitchen appliances and other household goods."

But, he explained, these things are rarely reported on personal property assessments.

To replace any lost revenue, Meyer plans to propose a flat increase of $50 on the assessed valuation of each car in the state, which he feels would come closest to making up the deficit of removing the personal property tax.

STANDARD TIME BILL MAY LOSE SUPPORT

A bill which would allow Missouri to remain on standard time, during the period when many states shift to daylight savings time, may never get out of committee since the Kansas Legislature recently voted down a similar proposal.

Rep. W. D. (Bill) Hibler (D-Brunswick), author of the bill, has explained that Congress last year passed an act which would allow an entire state to remain on standard time with approval of its Legislature.

Hibler's bill is backed by many of his constituents and several farm organizations, but favorable action on the measure was expected to depend on what the Kansas Legislature would do. Since that body voted down the proposal, Hibler's bill is expected to lose considerable support.

PROPOSE BONUS FOR WAR VETERANS

Two bills introduced in the Missouri House of Representatives would give bonuses to veterans who served during the periods of World War II and the Korean conflict.

Reps. Edna Eads (R-Bonne Terre) and Elsa Hill (D-St. Louis) introduced the measures which would provide a bonus of $5 for each month served by a veteran stationed in the United States during the war periods and $15 for veterans who were stationed overseas.

Bonuses are not to exceed $500 and the veteran must have been honorably discharged. Conscientious objectors are exempted who may have served during these periods.

A minimum flat bonus of $10 per month served would be established for any veteran with a service-connected disability even though the service was a domestic one.

BILL WOULD UPGRADE STANDARDS FOR EGGS

A bill proposed by Rep. Ruben Shapeler (D-Butler) would upgrade the regulations pertaining to the sale of eggs, and re-define egg as "raw egg in the shell that are the produce of the domesticated chicken."

The bill also would re-define consumer as one who buys eggs for food in his own home and adds the definition of "institutional consumer" as one who uses eggs for food, and shall include restaurants, hotels, cafeterias, hospitals, nursing homes, state instutitions, jails and other establishments.

Nothing in the act prohibits the sale of eggs produced on the farm and sold directly to the consumer, except that such eggs must be produced by hens maintained on the farm from which they are sold.

In addition, a Missouri producer of eggs selling ungraded eggs from his own flock production is exempt from the provisions of the act, except that, if such producer desires to sell graded eggs, he may do so if he complies with the act.

WOULD PERMIT SUNDAY LIQUOR SALES

A bill introduced in the House by Rep. Thomas F. Ryan (D-Kansas City) would allow sale of liquor by the drink in all cities of the first class and in all cities allowing the sale of liquor by the drink and located in counties of the first class.

The bill places a time limitation of 1 p.m. to 12 midnight on the sale of liquor by the drink on Sunday.

LOBBYISTS OBJECTING TO BILL ASSIGNMENTS

Several veteran lobbyists in Jefferson City recently remarked that this is the first session of the Legislature in which they remember so many bills were assigned to a committee where the chairman is also the author of the bill.

Lobbyists who have opposed some of these bills complain that it puts them in an awkward situation when the bill's author has complete control over the hearing.

The Speaker of the House has the right to assign bills to committees, but there appears to have been no objections from the floor when a bill was assigned to a committee whose chairman also is the author.

Many of the lobbyists feel that the House should establish a rule that would designate another committee member to take over the chairmanship when the chairman had a direct interest in the legislation being heard.

"For a chairman to control the hearing of his own bill seems to violate the spirit of conflict of interest," one lobbyist said.

Dear Ron:

What's wrong, did I help to tear down your play house?

In the first place I did not condemn the entire Senior Class only those who took part in the incident and I didn't condemn them any more than I did the parents if they knew about it for not putting a stop to it.

I know school officials can only go so far if they don't have the cooperation of the parents. No, it sure was not a cry of indignation. I gave it very careful thought that if I could say something that would put a stop to something that could turn into a tragedy and you kids would be sorry for the rest of your lives. Also to help some of the parents feel their deep responsibility. It will be worth any criticism or embarrassment that I might get.

As for the tradition, it's a very bad one. If you are ashamed for people to know about it why not carry on a tradition that both you and your school can be proud of.

And I don't wish war or death on anyone, but I do say if your parents or the school officials neither one can control you and stop you from doing things like that you need to be over there where just maybe you would learn that you have responsibilities to others as well as yourself, instead of trying to ignore the very thing our boys are fighting for - the rights and privileges of others.

And the narcotic report - it's not the first time it's been reported in our schools. About 4 or 5 years ago there was quite a stir about it being in school and there is no limit I wouldn't go as I know a lot of others would, to keep our boys and girls from coming in contact with that.

I have had several mothers to call me about the letter and they have boys in high school and they are behind me one hundred percent. Now maybe it will stop.

I know kids do things sometimes without thinking about the harm it could cause but now you know so don't do it anymore, and for goodness sake, get a better tradition please.

It's every citizen's duty to keep our schools and our town clean and something to be proud of and the way to keep it that way is to put a stop to things like that before it gets out of control and leads to worse things.

Come out and talk to me personally. I would like nothing better.

Good Morning Charlie:

You made an otherwise gloomy, overcast day in Columbia look a lot brighter today when I received the Standard's 12th Annual Progress Edition. Marilyn and I save it and read it by pieces, catching up on all the news and fine things that have happened in Sikeston since our last visit.

I certainly hope all your readers see the Progress Edition as a representation of the growth your city has experienced in the past year and realize the tremendous potential Sikeston has to become the capital of the Bootheel. I think also your readers should take note of the merchants, firms and businessmen who have advertised in the progress edition because they're the ones who have made Sikeston's growth possible. The people interested in making Sikeston a good place to live are those who take the time and money to tell their neighbors about Sikeston through their progress reports and advertising.

Sikeston certainly has a lot to be proud about. Maybe your readers will want to buy extra copies of the Progress Edition to send to friends and business associates to show what a wonderful town they live in.

Thanks for sending the newspaper. I'm just about ready to pack up and move down because of it.

Highlights and Sidelights

From Our Capitol

HOUSE CONSIDERS "DUAL ENROLLMENT" BILL

JEFFERSON CITY -- Amid many of the emotional arguments against the proposed "shared time" bill under consideration in the House of Representatives, more thought is being given to the lucid presentation for the bill given to the House education committee by Paul E. Williams, legal assistant to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

The bill recently was approved by the House education committee and is now being considered on the floor of the House. House passage is expected but more opposition is foreseen in the Senate.

In a seven - page statement Williams pointed out that the question whether the bill would violate constitutional prohibitions against aid to religion has been thoughtfully considered by legal authorities in several states -- none of whom hold that a dual attendance program violates the constitutional prohibition against aid to religion.

Williams warned the committee against referring to the bill as a "shared time" or "dual enrollment" proposal. "We should look to what the bill does, and not to what it is called," he said.

The bill, he said, "would permit children to attend more than one school during the regular schooltime. This would not apply to all school programs but would be limited to only two types -- special education for the mentally and physically handicapped children, and programs for economically and educationally deprived children financed by the United States under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965."

"Some handicaps," he explained, "permit the child to remain in the normal school curriculum most of the time, special instruction being required only part time. A typical example of such a handicap would be the need for speech correction, or training of the partially deaf or blind."

"Educationally deprived children" are those who, because of poverty, handicap, inferior schools and the like, have not made normal advancement.

The federal funds are only granted for use in a school concentration of low - income families. The funds may not be used to merely supplant existing programs, but must be used to finance new or supplemental programs, he said.

Frequently this money is used for remedial programs in the basic skills, "the old three Rs -- reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic," Williams explained.

In addition, under the Federal act, if the program does not provide for participation of children attending private schools, then no federal funds will be granted for the benefit of any children.

Present state law prohibits conducting a program during regular schooltime which includes children enrolled in non - public schools. To meet federal requirements of comparable opportunity to private pupils, public school districts must conduct these federal programs during the evening, on Saturday and during the summer.

However, school authorities have reported that pupils in such programs make considerably lower gains than pupils who attend programs during normal school hours.

A 1964 survey, Williams said, was conducted by the National Education Assn. and reported that dual attendance programs were then operated in 36 states and that an additional five states were contemplating establishing such programs.

Two state courts -- Pennsylvania and Illinois -- have upheld the constitutionality of dual attendance, and the United States Supreme Court, almost 10 years ago, also upheld the constitutionality of a dual attendance practice, Williams said.

He concluded by noting that the terms "public school pupil" and "private school pupil" only denote where the child is presently in school. The same child may be both a public and a private school pupil -- the child is the same -- and he does not alter his citizenship by attending a private school, he added.

BILL WOULD END TAX ON PERSONAL PROPERTY

Long criticized as being unfair to all citizens, the personal property tax in Missouri may be abolished in this session of the Legislature.

Rep. Walter L. Meyer (D-St. Louis) has proposed a constitutional amendment which would allow the voters to register their opinion on whether to retain or abolish the tax.

Meyer explained that his House Joint Resolution was permissive legislation -- that is, first the voters would have to give authority to the Legislature to abolish the tax through the constitutional amendment, and then the General Assembly would have to pass a bill in another session which would effectively put it to an end.

Thus, he said, the change would not be so radical or quick to give people second doubts -- they would have a chance to express their opinion first, and the tax would not be abolished for at least another two years.

Meyer said there has been much inequity in the enforcement of the personal property tax and that in the metropolitan areas, it is practically impossible to enforce.

"Most people do not realize," he said, "that they are violating the law when they fail to report items such as suits, a mint coat, kitchen appliances and other household goods."

But, he explained, these things are rarely reported on personal property assessments.

To replace any lost revenue, Meyer plans to propose a flat increase of $50 on the assessed valuation of each car in the state, which he feels would come closest to making up the deficit of removing the personal property tax.

STANDARD TIME BILL MAY LOSE SUPPORT

A bill which would allow Missouri to remain on standard time, during the period when many states shift to daylight savings time, may never get out of committee since the Kansas Legislature recently voted down a similar proposal.

Rep. W. D. (Bill) Hibler (D-Brunswick), author of the bill, has explained that Congress last year passed an act which would allow an entire state to remain on standard time with approval of its Legislature.

Hibler's bill is backed by many of his constituents and several farm organizations, but favorable action on the measure was expected to depend on what the Kansas Legislature would do. Since that body voted down the proposal, Hibler's bill is expected to lose considerable support.

PROPOSE BONUS FOR WAR VETERANS

Two bills introduced in the Missouri House of Representatives would give bonuses to veterans who served during the periods of World War II and the Korean conflict.

Reps. Edna Eads (R-Bonne Terre) and Elsa Hill (D-St. Louis) introduced the measures which would provide a bonus of $5 for each month served by a veteran stationed in the United States during the war periods and $15 for veterans who were stationed overseas.

Bonuses are not to exceed $500 and the veteran must have been honorably discharged. Conscientious objectors are exempted who may have served during these periods.

A minimum flat bonus of $10 per month served would be established for any veteran with a service-connected disability even though the service was a domestic one.

BILL WOULD UPGRADE STANDARDS FOR EGGS

A bill proposed by Rep. Ruben Shapeler (D-Butler) would upgrade the regulations pertaining to the sale of eggs, and re-define egg as "raw egg in the shell that are the produce of the domesticated chicken."

The bill also would re-define consumer as one who buys eggs for food in his own home and adds the definition of "institutional consumer" as one who uses eggs for food, and shall include restaurants, hotels, cafeterias, hospitals, nursing homes, state instutitions, jails and other establishments.

Nothing in the act prohibits the sale of eggs produced on the farm and sold directly to the consumer, except that such eggs must be produced by hens maintained on the farm from which they are sold.

In addition, a Missouri producer of eggs selling ungraded eggs from his own flock production is exempt from the provisions of the act, except that, if such producer desires to sell graded eggs, he may do so if he complies with the act.

WOULD PERMIT SUNDAY LIQUOR SALES

A bill introduced in the House by Rep. Thomas F. Ryan (D-Kansas City) would allow sale of liquor by the drink in all cities of the first class and in all cities allowing the sale of liquor by the drink and located in counties of the first class.

The bill places a time limitation of 1 p.m. to 12 midnight on the sale of liquor by the drink on Sunday.

LOBBYISTS OBJECTING TO BILL ASSIGNMENTS

Several veteran lobbyists in Jefferson City recently remarked that this is the first session of the Legislature in which they remember so many bills were assigned to a committee where the chairman is also the author of the bill.

Lobbyists who have opposed some of these bills complain that it puts them in an awkward situation when the bill's author has complete control over the hearing.

The Speaker of the House has the right to assign bills to committees, but there appears to have been no objections from the floor when a bill was assigned to a committee whose chairman also is the author.

Many of the lobbyists feel that the House should establish a rule that would designate another committee member to take over the chairmanship when the chairman had a direct interest in the legislation being heard.

"For a chairman to control the hearing of his own bill seems to violate the spirit of conflict of interest," one lobbyist said.

W. H. GILMER JR., coordinator of the North New Madrid County neighborhood service center at Big Ridge school, inspects donated clothing which will be renovated and distributed to low-income families.

ELDERLY WOMEN make quilts at the North New Madrid County neighborhood service center. The quilts are made from materials donated to the center and are distributed to needy families.

One of a Series

Happiness Is Helping Others at NSC

By Warren Sokolis

MATTHEWS -- A senior citizens program, designed to help not only participants but economically deprived families, has started at the North New Madrid County neighborhood service center at Big Ridge school.

Women have been restoring old clothing and making quilts that are given needy families in Matthews, Canalou and Morehouse.

One of the benefits is the help provided economically deprived families, Harland Gilmer Jr., center coordinator, explained.

Donated used clothing is renovated by the women, who meet Tuesdays from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Tears are patched and adult clothing is made into children's garments.

Clothing needs are great, Gilmer said. A survey showed that about 75 per cent of the families in the area are low income (less than $3,000 annual income).

Many families with children are unable to clothe them adequately. Often children do not have shoes.

Although much clothing has been given away, the center still needs more clothing and children's shoes.

Women also are making quilts. More tops and other materials for making quilts are needed.

The program serves a social need for the women. "Senior citizens are the most neglected segment of our society, and the monotony of sitting at home alone with nothing to do gives them the feeling that they are no longer needed by the rest of society," Gilmer said.

The women have found that they can be useful citizens. "They go home in a better mood than when they came," Gilmer observed.

The NSC, which is one of 24 neighborhood service centers in the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, also is helping families overcome other problems.

The majority are employed as farm laborers, a seasonal occupation. Most of them are on welfare rolls.

The center's two aides, Ola Goodwin and Dimple Malloy, spend most of their time helping them, Gilmer said. They provide transportation to doctors, grocery stores and other places inaccessible to persons, who do not have cars or who are unable to reach New Madrid.

Gilmer acts as a referral agent for welfare and employment offices. He takes names of those, who are seeking employment, and refers them to the state employment service.

Gilmer said that the center has obtained assistance for a dozen families, who needed help but had no means of support.

The center was responsible for having three senior citizen homes built and for getting food for two dozen families, who did not know that such commodities were available.

Many residents depend on the center for transportation.

Some low-income parents do not send their children to school. In such cases the center reports the incidents to the traunt officer or to the welfare office (if the family is on welfare).

There are two causes for truancy in low-income families, Gilmer said. Many parents are ashamed to send their children to school because the children have ragged clothes, no shoes or both. Some parents do not realize the importance of education as a means of escaping poverty.

In looking to the future, Gilmer expressed hope that an adult basic education program can be provided.

ABE funds of $6,700 have been approved by DAEOC, and the center is awaiting final approval from the Office of Economic Opportunity's regional office at Kansas City.

The need for basic education is great, Gilmer said. About 100 of the 2,500 persons surveyed in the Matthews, Canalou and Morehouse areas have expressed a desire to participate. Many are nonreaders.

The Missouri Extension service is working to set up a class for home course cooking or sewing. A Head Start program may begin later.

The center has been allotted $19,000 by DAEOC through November.

Members of the community action agency's board and I. B. McNew of Morehouse, president; Randolph Kem of Matthews, vice president; Mrs. David Croom of Sikeston Route 3, secretary-treasurer; C. J. Ralph of Canalou, Wyatt Cobb, Harold Burch and Lingle Parker, all of Matthews, Mrs. J. H. Calvin of Sikeston Route 3 and Mrs. Sue Nimmo of the Delmo project, adivsory board members, and Gene Curtis of Matthews and Melvin Clark and Charles Menees, both of Morehouse, county board members.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE SNOWBALL KID

Perry was driving along when he was suddenly bombarded by a foray of snowballs that had been heaved by a group of children standing near the road. Jumping out of his car (having stopped it first), Perry caught up to 10-year-old Dennis as the latter was about to reach home. Grabbing the youngster by the arm, Perry drove the snowball kid into town and turned him over to a police officer with the information that Dennis had been endangering motorists by throwing snowballs at passing cars.

"The guy was a big bully," the boy's lawyer told the judge. "He had no right to push Dennis around or to take him anywhere in his car."

"What are you talking about?" was Perry's answer. "If I hadn't turned that kid over to the policeman, his snowball throwing might have caused a serious accident. Under the circumstances, I obviously acted both intelligently and reasonably."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the Snowball Kid to recover?

This is how the Judge ruled: Dennis collected. The Judge held that while a motorist may take reascnable steps to prevent a child from throwing snowballs at passing automobiles, putting him in a car, a few yards from the child's home, and then driving him into town to turn him over to a policeman is unreasonable as a matter of law. That from the time Dennis was put into the car, his liberty was illegally restrained so as to constitute false imprisonment.

Robbery requires the use of force. In the absense of force, there's no robbery. As an example, to take a wallet from a sleeping person is not robbery since no force was necessary.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I am going with a young man who has a lot of ability and a great future, but he behaves so peculiarly at times it is frightening.

At first I thought he had been drinking. Last night he confessed that he has been sniffing glue.

He claims glue sniffing is not dangerous, not habit forming, and it gives him a grand feeling of exhilaration. I have never known anyone who did this and I wish you would tell me if I am worrying needlessly, as he says - PLENTY UPSET

Dear Plenty: Glue sniffing is a form of intoxication, only the sniffer uses toxic fumes instead of liquor.

It is indeed dangerous because the fumes can damage the liver as well as other vital organs, including the brain. It is not habit forming in the sense that it leads to addiction, but glue sniffers have a tendency to go from glue to narcotics in search of bigger kicks.

People have been seriously injured and killed while under the influence of glue because the judgment is often grossly distorted after several whiffs. Anyone who thinks glue sniffing is not a dangerous practice is kidding himself.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to address this letter to all you middle-aged women who are feeling sorry for yourselves because your children are grown and no longer need you. No doubt you've been thinking of the past -- longing to relive those days when the kids were running around the house, playmates coming and going, toys scattered all over, good night kisses and the whole bit.

Well, you've got short memories, Mommie, so I want to remind you of what it was REALLY like because I am in the middle of those days right now and I KNOW.

My three children are under six years of age and they are driving me nuts. Between the phone, the washing, the ironing, the marketing, the diapering, the refereeing, the cleaning, the cooking and the mending, I am ready to flip my wig.

Do I feel needed? No. I feel harassed, frustrated, and defeated.

You are luck to have the work and worry behind you. I'm living for the day when my kids are grown and on their own. There, I hope you feel better. -- LIVING THROUGH IT

Dear Living: What you need is one day a week off so you can enjoy your kids instead of feeling trapped. Make a trade-off arrangement with a friend or a relative if you can't afford a sitter, but for heaven's sake get some relief before you konk out.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are opposed to inter-faith marriages because I heard you say so when you spoke in our high school a few years ago.

Now I am going with a young man whose religion is different from mine. I wish I could remember what you said -- the reasons, I mean. Please go over them again. Thank you. -- UNDECIDED GIRL.

Dear Girl: The records show that individuals who share the same religious beliefs have five times as good a chance of staying married as those who do not. Since marriage is becoming increasingly risky (almost one out of three flop) it makes sense to start out on as solid a footing as possible.

He will most likely have no opposition.

W. H. GILMER JR., coordinator of the North New Madrid County neighborhood service center at Big Ridge school, inspects donated clothing which will be renovated and distributed to low-income families.

ELDERLY WOMEN make quilts at the North New Madrid County neighborhood service center. The quilts are made from materials donated to the center and are distributed to needy families.

One of a Series

Happiness Is Helping Others at NSC

By Warren Sokolis

MATTHEWS -- A senior citizens program, designed to help not only participants but economically deprived families, has started at the North New Madrid County neighborhood service center at Big Ridge school.

Women have been restoring old clothing and making quilts that are given needy families in Matthews, Canalou and Morehouse.

One of the benefits is the help provided economically deprived families, Harland Gilmer Jr., center coordinator, explained.

Donated used clothing is renovated by the women, who meet Tuesdays from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Tears are patched and adult clothing is made into children's garments.

Clothing needs are great, Gilmer said. A survey showed that about 75 per cent of the families in the area are low income (less than $3,000 annual income).

Many families with children are unable to clothe them adequately. Often children do not have shoes.

Although much clothing has been given away, the center still needs more clothing and children's shoes.

Women also are making quilts. More tops and other materials for making quilts are needed.

The program serves a social need for the women. "Senior citizens are the most neglected segment of our society, and the monotony of sitting at home alone with nothing to do gives them the feeling that they are no longer needed by the rest of society," Gilmer said.

The women have found that they can be useful citizens. "They go home in a better mood than when they came," Gilmer observed.

The NSC, which is one of 24 neighborhood service centers in the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, also is helping families overcome other problems.

The majority are employed as farm laborers, a seasonal occupation. Most of them are on welfare rolls.

The center's two aides, Ola Goodwin and Dimple Malloy, spend most of their time helping them, Gilmer said. They provide transportation to doctors, grocery stores and other places inaccessible to persons, who do not have cars or who are unable to reach New Madrid.

Gilmer acts as a referral agent for welfare and employment offices. He takes names of those, who are seeking employment, and refers them to the state employment service.

Gilmer said that the center has obtained assistance for a dozen families, who needed help but had no means of support.

The center was responsible for having three senior citizen homes built and for getting food for two dozen families, who did not know that such commodities were available.

Many residents depend on the center for transportation.

Some low-income parents do not send their children to school. In such cases the center reports the incidents to the traunt officer or to the welfare office (if the family is on welfare).

There are two causes for truancy in low-income families, Gilmer said. Many parents are ashamed to send their children to school because the children have ragged clothes, no shoes or both. Some parents do not realize the importance of education as a means of escaping poverty.

In looking to the future, Gilmer expressed hope that an adult basic education program can be provided.

ABE funds of $6,700 have been approved by DAEOC, and the center is awaiting final approval from the Office of Economic Opportunity's regional office at Kansas City.

The need for basic education is great, Gilmer said. About 100 of the 2,500 persons surveyed in the Matthews, Canalou and Morehouse areas have expressed a desire to participate. Many are nonreaders.

The Missouri Extension service is working to set up a class for home course cooking or sewing. A Head Start program may begin later.

The center has been allotted $19,000 by DAEOC through November.

Members of the community action agency's board and I. B. McNew of Morehouse, president; Randolph Kem of Matthews, vice president; Mrs. David Croom of Sikeston Route 3, secretary-treasurer; C. J. Ralph of Canalou, Wyatt Cobb, Harold Burch and Lingle Parker, all of Matthews, Mrs. J. H. Calvin of Sikeston Route 3 and Mrs. Sue Nimmo of the Delmo project, adivsory board members, and Gene Curtis of Matthews and Melvin Clark and Charles Menees, both of Morehouse, county board members.

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I am going with a young man who has a lot of ability and a great future, but he behaves so peculiarly at times it is frightening.

At first I thought he had been drinking. Last night he confessed that he has been sniffing glue.

He claims glue sniffing is not dangerous, not habit forming, and it gives him a grand feeling of exhilaration. I have never known anyone who did this and I wish you would tell me if I am worrying needlessly, as he says - PLENTY UPSET

Dear Plenty: Glue sniffing is a form of intoxication, only the sniffer uses toxic fumes instead of liquor.

It is indeed dangerous because the fumes can damage the liver as well as other vital organs, including the brain. It is not habit forming in the sense that it leads to addiction, but glue sniffers have a tendency to go from glue to narcotics in search of bigger kicks.

People have been seriously injured and killed while under the influence of glue because the judgment is often grossly distorted after several whiffs. Anyone who thinks glue sniffing is not a dangerous practice is kidding himself.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to address this letter to all you middle-aged women who are feeling sorry for yourselves because your children are grown and no longer need you. No doubt you've been thinking of the past -- longing to relive those days when the kids were running around the house, playmates coming and going, toys scattered all over, good night kisses and the whole bit.

Well, you've got short memories, Mommie, so I want to remind you of what it was REALLY like because I am in the middle of those days right now and I KNOW.

My three children are under six years of age and they are driving me nuts. Between the phone, the washing, the ironing, the marketing, the diapering, the refereeing, the cleaning, the cooking and the mending, I am ready to flip my wig.

Do I feel needed? No. I feel harassed, frustrated, and defeated.

You are luck to have the work and worry behind you. I'm living for the day when my kids are grown and on their own. There, I hope you feel better. -- LIVING THROUGH IT

Dear Living: What you need is one day a week off so you can enjoy your kids instead of feeling trapped. Make a trade-off arrangement with a friend or a relative if you can't afford a sitter, but for heaven's sake get some relief before you konk out.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are opposed to inter-faith marriages because I heard you say so when you spoke in our high school a few years ago.

Now I am going with a young man whose religion is different from mine. I wish I could remember what you said -- the reasons, I mean. Please go over them again. Thank you. -- UNDECIDED GIRL.

Dear Girl: The records show that individuals who share the same religious beliefs have five times as good a chance of staying married as those who do not. Since marriage is becoming increasingly risky (almost one out of three flop) it makes sense to start out on as solid a footing as possible.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE SNOWBALL KID

Perry was driving along when he was suddenly bombarded by a foray of snowballs that had been heaved by a group of children standing near the road. Jumping out of his car (having stopped it first), Perry caught up to 10-year-old Dennis as the latter was about to reach home. Grabbing the youngster by the arm, Perry drove the snowball kid into town and turned him over to a police officer with the information that Dennis had been endangering motorists by throwing snowballs at passing cars.

"The guy was a big bully," the boy's lawyer told the judge. "He had no right to push Dennis around or to take him anywhere in his car."

"What are you talking about?" was Perry's answer. "If I hadn't turned that kid over to the policeman, his snowball throwing might have caused a serious accident. Under the circumstances, I obviously acted both intelligently and reasonably."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the Snowball Kid to recover?

This is how the Judge ruled: Dennis collected. The Judge held that while a motorist may take reascnable steps to prevent a child from throwing snowballs at passing automobiles, putting him in a car, a few yards from the child's home, and then driving him into town to turn him over to a policeman is unreasonable as a matter of law. That from the time Dennis was put into the car, his liberty was illegally restrained so as to constitute false imprisonment.

(Based upon a 1966 Wisconsin Supreme Court Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

Robbery requires the use of force. In the absense of force, there's no robbery. As an example, to take a wallet from a sleeping person is not robbery since no force was necessary.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 28, the 59th day of 1967. There are 306 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1854, members of the so called "Free Soil" Democratic faction and the Whig party met at Ripon, Wis. They adopted the name "Republican" to describe their common principles. Out of many such meetings across the nation, what is now known as the Republican party gradually emerged.

On this date:

In 1483, Italian painter Raphael was born.

In 1861, the Territory of Colorado was organized.

In 1933, a Nazi decree suppressed civil liberties in Germany.

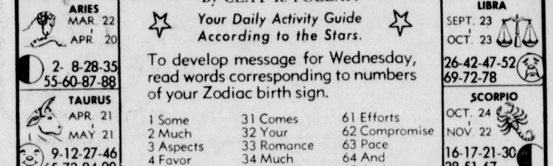

In 1943, the U.S. Navy launched the aircraft carrier Monterey.

In 1946, Switzerland anannounced the Prussian goose-step no longer would be used in its army.

Ten years ago — At the end of three days of talks at the White House, President Dwight D. Eisenhower and French Premier Guy Mollet reaffirmed "the long-standing and friendly ties" between the United States and France.

Five years ago — In Peru, a mudslide buried completely the small village of Conchucos, claiming the lives of some 60 villagers.

One year ago — American astronauts Elliott See Jr. and Charles Bassett were killed when their T38 jet trainer crashed.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 28, the 59th day of 1967. There are 306 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1854, members of the so called "Free Soil" Democratic faction and the Whig party met at Ripon, Wis. They adopted the name "Republican" to describe their common principles. Out of many such meetings across the nation, what is now known as the Republican party gradually emerged.

On this date:

In 1483, Italian painter Raphael was born.

In 1861, the Territory of Colorado was organized.

In 1923, a Nazi decree suppressed civil liberties in Germany.

In 1943, the U.S. Navy launched the aircraft carrier Monterey.

In 1946, Switzerland announced the Prussian goose-step no longer would be used in its army.

Ten years ago — At the end of three days of talks at the White House, President Dwight D. Eisenhower and French Premier Guy Mollet reaffirmed "the long-standing and friendly ties" between the United States and France.

Five years ago — In Peru, a mudslide buried completely the small village of Conchucos, claiming the lives of some 60 villagers.

TIZZY by Kate Osann

"Of course I'll tell you what we do if we park in the moonlight—Herbie adjusts the carburetor!"

CARNIVAL By Dick Turner

"Freddy is too proud to let me pay for a date, Mom. That's why I give him the money before we go out!"

tumors, Rosen told a House-Senate Atomic Energy Committee today. But he said they also destroy other tissue "wholesale" on their way to the tumor.

When Rosen completed a technical explanation of the proposed facility, Rep. Thomas G. Morris, D-N.M., asked "are you saying this facility offers the greatest hope for cancer treatment we've ever had?"

"Yes, sir," Rosen replied. "I said it weakly two years ago and now I say it with great emphasis."

Free! The Catholic faith explained

Simple "capsule study" is offered to all who seek a deeper understanding of Christianity

This free course of instruction offers you a quick, simple means of understanding the beliefs of Catholics.

For members of other Christian churches, the course is invaluable. It takes you back to earliest days of Christianity when there was but one church and one unified belief in Christ . . . gives you a new insight into Christian teaching. Further, it helps you understand your Catholic neighbors and find the religious harmony so many Christians are seeking.

For people who do not belong to any Christian church body, this literature may well help you find the happiness that comes from practicing Christianity. The booklet gives you logical explanations of the relationship man must have with God before he can find the real meaning of his existence . . . and belief in the immortality of his soul.

The two booklets are the first two courses in a series of six, which include questions and answers. The other four are available for the asking. The course will be sent in plain wrapper and no one will call on you.

Simple "capsule study" is offered to all who seek a deeper understanding of Christianity
This free course of instruction offers you a quick, simple means of understanding the beliefs of Catholics.
For members of other Christian churches, the course is invaluable. It takes you back to earliest days of Christianity when there was but one church and one unified belief in Christ . . . gives you a new insight into Christian teaching. Further, it helps you understand your Catholic neighbors and find the religious harmony so many Christians are seeking.
For people who do not belong to any Christian church body, this literature may well help you find the happiness that comes from practicing Christianity. The booklet gives you logical explanations of the relationship man must have with God before he can find the real meaning of his existence . . . and belief in the immortality of his soul.
The two booklets are the first two courses in a series of six, which include questions and answers. The other four are available for the asking. The course will be sent in plain wrapper and no one will call on you.
